2020 Application for Membership

GENERAL INFORMATION

Since its creation in 1912, the Canadian Political Science Association has promoted, developed, and facilitated the study of government and politics in Canada and internationally. The association provides services to those committed to educating Canadians and international scholars about government and politics and to conducting academic research on these topics. It connects students, researchers, practitioners, teachers, and public officials, both to one another as well as to domestic and international resources for the study of the discipline.

ELIGIBILITY

If you are a political scientist or a student in political science; a retired academic or researcher; a public official or researcher in federal, provincial, or local governments, international organizations, agencies, or NGOs; a teacher or researcher in a college or a Cégep*;* or a person in the private sector interested in the study of government and politics, you may apply for membership in the Association.

Membership in either of the two categories available (Canadian Political Science Association only, or a joint membership in the Canadian Political Science Association and the Société québécoise de science politique) includes a subscription to the Canadian Journal of Political Science. There are two levels of membership fees in each category. Income level stated refers to gross annual income (before taxes).

A subscription to Canadian Public Policy is available to members of the Association and of the Société at special, sponsoring-association rates. Please see http://economics.ca/cpp/en/subscription.php for more information.

Signature _____   Date _____

The Development Fund was established in December 2009 by the CPSA Board of Directors to advance political science in Canada. It supports workshops, conferences, publications, prize competitions and similar activities. The fund is administered by the CPSA Board of Directors. Political scientists can support the Development Fund by contributing to the annual campaign, donating shares of royalties and making bequests from their estate. Tax receipts are given for all contributions.
