Politique linguistique du Bulletin/Bulletin Language Policy

A partir de ce numéro, le Bulletin devient publication conjointe des deux associations de science politique et, donc, publication bilingue. Le Bulletin remplace les Lettres Circulaires de la Société canadienne de science politique, ainsi que le Newsletter de l'Association canadienne de science politique.

Le bureau de direction de la Société Canadienne de science politique et le comité de direction de l'Association canadienne de science politique ont décidé que le Bulletin publiera dorénavant toute information dans la langue ou des langues dans laquelle cette information sera reçue par la rédactrice. Autant que possible, il n'y aura pas de dédoublement (sauf pour cette explication).

The language policy of the Bulletin has changed. Up to now, the policy has been to publish everything in English, in accordance with the protocol established between the CPSA and the Société canadienne de science politique. Now that the Bulletin is a joint publication of the two groups, it becomes bilingual. It replaces the Lettres Circulaires of the Société canadienne de science politique and the Newsletter of the CPSA. All information will be published in the language, or languages, in which it is sent to the editor. We hope as much as possible, to avoid duplicating material in the two languages (as can be seen, this rule is being broken here, but hopefully this will not often occur).
DEPARTMENTAL NEWS/RAPPORTS DES DEPARTEMENTS

Nous remercions les personnes qui ont bien voulu nous envoyer des renseignements au sujet de leurs départements. Comme nous l'avons dit, c'est la seule façon de savoir ce qui se passe vraiment en science politique. Nous espérons continuer à recevoir ces nouvelles et nous suggérons même d'ajouter les renseignements supplémentaires; en plus de nous dire les changements de personnel il serait intéressant de connaître les subventions de recherches, les publications, les colloques, etc...

* * * * * * * *

We hope that this section on departmental news will become a regular feature of the Bulletin. Up to now it has dealt almost totally with staff changes, I hope that it can be expanded to include news about departmental seminars, research grants, publications, etc... This can be done if people let their departmental correspondent know about things that they feel should be in the Bulletin. Many thanks to the correspondents who've been sending in material.

SIR GEORGE WILLIAMS:

Professor G. Roseme of Carleton University is a visiting professor for 1973-74.

ST-THOMAS:

John Dreijmanis chaired the panel "The Political Science Labor Market" at the 1973 Annual Meeting of the American Political Science Association, New Orleans, September 4-8.

WINDSOR:

Ronald Wagenberg has been re-elected Head of the Department for the term 1974-77. He is on sabbatical in Britain for this year working on a project on comparative federalism.

Lawrence LeDuc is on sabbatical and is working both on the federal election project as well as a comparative Canada-Britain-U.S.

Ralph Nelson is Acting Head of the Department for 1973-74.

Lloyd Brown-John has been promoted to Associate Professor.

Maureen Covell has joined the Department for a one year period as an Assistant Professor. Maureen, a Canadian, came to us from Vasser where she taught from 1970-73. Her teaching interests include Political Development, African politics and Comparative politics. Her research interests have focussed primarily upon Centre-local linkages in Madagascar, and on political integration in Africa. To this end she has had research experience in Paris and in Madagascar.
The Committee to study Canadian Content in Political Science was created by the Board of Directors of the Canadian Political Science Association at its meeting in Montreal on June 5, 1972. The Board appointed a chairman of the committee, Paul Fox, and instructed him to form a committee composed of himself and four members, the latter to be chosen preferably from a short list of seven names given to the chairman by the Board. The final membership of the committee was to be submitted to the Steering Committee of the Association for its approval. Four of the individuals whose names appeared on the list were approached first by the chairman and each agreed to serve. In alphabetical order they were: Phyllis Clarke, Daniel Drache, Harold Kaplan, and Donald Smiley. The Steering Committee subsequently ratified the composition of the committee.

The Committee on Canadian Content was given an extensive subject to investigate but very specific and limited terms for reporting. The committee was asked to inquire into "the facts regarding the Canadian content of the teaching of political science in Canadian universities" but it was instructed to report upon facts only and not to draw conclusions or to make recommendations. The implicit assumption was that once the committee had reported the facts to the Board and to members of the Association, the committee's work would be concluded and any further action would be left to the Board or to the CPSA. The chairman accepted his role on this understanding and all members of the committee agreed to serve on these terms and have adhered to them.

The committee would have liked to present a more extensive factual report than that now offered. It was the committee's intention originally to report upon the Canadian content of the teaching of political science in Canadian universities in regard to the following: the faculty, post-graduate students, and curriculum (re undergraduate, post-graduate, and extension courses). The committee feels it has fulfilled its expectations in regard to the first two categories but not in regard to the third.

Information in the report was obtained from questionnaires sent to the chairmen of the departments of political science at all Canadian Universities and some colleges. The questionnaire was sent to 57 departments and it was answered and returned by 48 departments. These departments represented a total faculty of 472 full-time political scientists in 1972-73.

The major findings of the committee are as follows:

1. Approximately two-thirds of the full-time political scientists in Canadian universities are Canadian citizens. This percentage has probably declined in the past six years, since roughly 54 per cent of the political scientists appointed by Canadian universities during the past six years have been Canadians. The largest group of non-Canadians are U.S. citizens, who account for about 23 per cent of the political science positions at Canadian universities in 1972-73. In other words, during 1972-73 the ratio of Canadian to U.S. citizens in Canadian political science departments was roughly three to one.

* The University of Toronto provided data relevant to this table only, which is as follows: total number of full-time political scientists 49, of whom 37 were Canadian citizens and 12 were "other than Canadian citizens". If the data from Toronto are included, the relevant percentages for Canadian citizens for Ontario is 67.8, for English-speaking universities 64.2, and for all universities 66.2.

2- In the period of six years for which we obtained data Canadians received the smallest percentage of new political science appointments in the years 1968-69 and 1969-70. These were important years in terms of the aggregate number of new appointments. More recently, Canadians have been receiving an increasing percentage of new appointments, but the total number of new appointments has been diminishing rapidly. In other words, in the last three years, Canadian citizens have been receiving a larger and larger share, in percentage terms, of a shrinking job market.

Trends in the appointments made by universities in the West reflect the average trend for English-speaking universities, although universities in the West began from a smaller than average percentage of Canadians hired and moved, by 1972-73, to a much larger than average percentage of Canadians hired. There is relatively little variation over the six years in the percentage of Canadians hired by Ontario universities. In the Atlantic universities, the percentage of Canadians hired increased notably during 1968-70 and decreased thereafter.
The French-speaking universities are unique in that the percentage of Canadians appointed has steadily decreased in each year since 1967, although it should be remembered that these universities began from a base almost entirely dominated by Canadian appointments. Only among the French-speaking universities was the percentage of non-Canadians appointed higher in 1972-73 than in 1967-68.

3- "Larger" universities have a greater percentage of non-Canadian political scientists on their staff than do "other" universities. A "larger" university has been defined arbitrarily as a respondent having a department of political science with 13 or more full-time faculty members in 1972-73; "others" are the remaining institutions among our respondents. (2)

"Faster-growing" universities have a larger percentage of non-Canadian political scientists on their staff than do the "other" universities. The "faster growing" universities were defined arbitrarily as the 10 universities that ranked highest in the hiring of the largest number of full-time political scientists during the period 1967 to 1973. (3) "Others" are the remaining institutions among the respondents.

5- Our information does not allow us to predict with any assurance the citizenship composition of political science departments in the next few years. We would expect the Canadian component to increase. Some of the non-Canadians can be expected to acquire the citizenship of the country. Also, if the trends of the period since 1970 continue, those who are Canadian citizens will receive a higher proportion of appointments than in the 1960's. However, if the decline in new appointments experienced in 1972-73 continues in the immediate future new appointments will not have a major effect on citizenship composition.

6- There is a smaller percentage of Canadians in graduate political science programmes in Canadian universities than there are Canadians on the faculties of these universities. Roughly two-thirds of the political scientists teaching at Canadian universities in 1972-73 were Canadian citizens; in the same year just over half of the graduate students in political science were Canadians.
(Of course, we should repeat our earlier warning that these figures do not include data on three large graduate programmes which failed to respond to our request for information.)

7- A quantitative assessment of course content based on information supplied by departmental chairmen indicates that roughly 30 per cent of all the undergraduate and graduate political science courses in Canadian universities have entirely or predominantly Canadian content. About half of all the courses are entirely or predominantly non-Canadian in their content. (In this latter category are included not only courses on governments other than Canada but courses on political theory and many courses on international relations.) Approximately 20 per cent of all the courses have both Canadian and non-Canadian content.
8- We recognize that our enquiry into course content was only a modest beginning. The committee feels that much more research could be done on the nature of political science courses being offered at Canadian universities; but we feel that this would require a more intensive qualitative (rather than quantitative) analysis.

9- The French-speaking and English-speaking universities in Canada produce such different results on all of the topics we have studied that one must use any Canada-wide data with great caution. The variations among the English-language universities on the axes we examined (region, "larger/other", "faster-growing/other") were less marked in almost every case than the differences between English-language and French-language universities.

10- It should be emphasized again that all our percentages and conclusions are based on less than a complete survey of all political scientists teaching at Canadian universities in 1972-73. Our data are based on the information supplied by the chairmen of 48 universities/colleges who responded to our Questionnaire and our data deal only with full-time faculty.

The Committee recommended that further analysis be done on the information on course content. The members suggested that the CPSA consider providing for further investigation of the material, including qualitative as well as quantitative analysis.

At the 1973 CPSA annual meeting a resolution was passed to continue the work of the Committee as outlined above. The committee is presently being reestablished by the Board of Director.

The Committee's report has been very considerably abridged for the Bulletin. Any one who would like a copy of the full report should contact the C.P.S.A. office.
Statistics Canada gave the following data re citizenship for full-time staff members in the Social Sciences in Canadian universities/colleges in 1970-71: Canada, 61.8 per cent; United States, 15.2 per cent; United Kingdom, 10.2 per cent; France, 2.9 per cent; others, 10.2 per cent.

By this criterion the "larger" universities are alphabetically: Alberta, British Columbia, Calgary, Dalhousie, Laval, Manitoba, McMaster, Ottawa, Quebec (UQAM), Queens, Saskatchewan, (Saskatoon), Waterloo, Western, Windsor, York (Faculty of Arts).

By this criterion the "faster growing" universities are alphabetically: Alberta, Dalhousie, Glendon College (York), Laval, McMaster, Ottawa, Quebec (UQAM), St.Mary's, Waterloo, York (Faculty of Arts,)
État de la documentation en science politique "québécoise".

A la suite d'une résolution de l'assemblée générale de la ScSp d'octobre 1970, plusieurs membres ont travaillé à un inventaire des ressources documentaires disponibles dans les différentes universités particulièrement du point de vue de la science politique "québécoise". Il ressort de cet inventaire qu'il n'y a pas de coordination des efforts en ce domaine, et que le développement des collections se fait plutôt au hasard, souvent en confondant "recherche et documentation".

Suite à un rapport présenté par M. André Bernard et dont les membres intéressés peuvent se procurer une copie au secrétariat de la ScSp, le Bureau de direction a résolu qu'un prochain cahier de la ScSp contienne une description des ressources documentaires disponibles dans les différentes universités. D'autre part, copie du rapport Bernard sera adressée aux principaux responsables de bibliothèques intéressés à la documentation politique.

Congrès de l'ACFAS (mai 1974)

Comme par les années passées -- sauf en 1974 où à cause de la tenue du Congrès international de science politique à Montréal, le congrès annuel a été fixé en août --, la ScSp tiendra son congrès annuel dans le cadre de l'ACFAS en mai 1974. La documentation adéquate et les formulaires d'enregistrement de communications seront expédiés sous peu aux membres de la ScSp.

Le congrès de l'ACFAS ayant lieu à Québec, deux collègues de l'Université Laval, Mme Louise Quesnel-Ouellet et M. Guy Gosselin assumèrent les tâches d'organisation. Toutefois, il y aura une certaine décentralisation par sections avec des responsables pour chacune.

Administration publique: Mme L. Quesnel-Ouellet
Analyse politique : M. V. Lemieux
Relations internationales: M. A. Legault (C.Q.R.I.)

Les membres désireux de présenter une communication sont priés d'entrer en communication au plus tôt avec les différents responsables.
RELATIONS AVEC LA CPSA

a) Comme en témoigne ce texte même, suite à une proposition du comité de liaison CPSA - ScSp, le Bureau de direction de la ScSp a résolu de fondre la lettre circulaire (jaune) de la ScSp avec la Newsletter de la CPSA pour en faire une publication conjointe et bilingue.

b) Quant à la proposition de tenir un colloque conjoint CPSA - ScSp à l’automne 1974, les membres du Bureau de direction de la ScSp sont plutôt du sentiment que la tenue d’un colloque conjoint et général tel celui qui s’est tenu à Montréal les 18, 19 et 20 août immédiatement avant le Congrès international, représente un investissement de ressources trop grand pour être envisagé sur une base annuelle. Ils seraient plutôt d’avis de tenir des réunions spécialisées entre membres des deux sociétés s’intéressant plus particulièrement à un secteur donné, par exemple en analyse politique. La question fera le sujet d’un nouvel échange de vues au comité de liaison CPSA - ScSp.

c) Comité conjoint sur la professionnalisation
La ScSp et la CPSA ont décidé de créer un comité conjoint dont le mandat sera d’étudier le statut de la profession de politicologue sous tous ses aspects et en particulier les suivants:

- la rémunération des travaux de recherches à l’extérieur, des chargés de cours, etc.
- la reconnaissance du statut de la science politique par la fonction publique.
- le rapport financier et matériel apporté à la recherche en science politique, etc.

Il est demandé au comité de présenter un rapport pour mars 1974; le professeur Edouard Cloutier (UQAM) représentera la ScSp sur ce comité.

NOMINATION

Le professeur Guy Lord (UQAM) a été désigné comme représentant de la ScSp au comité Engleman-Meechison chargé de rédiger une réponse au rapport Lamontagne sur la politique scientifique.

M. André Blais (U. d’Ottawa) remplacera M. E. Cloutier démissionnaire, au comité de statistiques du Conseil canadien de recherches en sciences sociales.
STAGES PARLEMENTAIRES À L'ASSEMBLÉE NATIONALE – 1974–1975

Après une longue période de gestation, le projet de stages parlementaires à l'Assemblée nationale, sous les auspices de la ScSp et avec le concours financier de la Donner Canadian Foundation, a pu enfin débloquer. Lors de sa dernière réunion tenue le 2 novembre 1973, le Bureau de Direction de la ScSp a tenu à remercier tout spécialement le professeur Léon Dion pour l'intérêt tout spécial qu'il avait montré pour ce projet et pour son appui efficace dans les négociations avec le comité de régie de l'Assemblée nationale.

Dans le but de faire démarrer au plus tôt le projet, madame Louise Quesnel-Ouellet de l'université Laval, a été désignée comme directeur du programme. Elle sera assistée dans son travail par un comité des stages et un jury de sélection. Le programme a été présenté officiellement à la presse le jeudi 29 novembre par le président de l'Assemblée Nationale, M. Jean-Noël Lavoie, en présence du président de la ScSp, du Directeur du programme et d'un représentant de la Donner Foundation.

Il est déjà prévu que huit stagiaires, recrutés par concours d'ici le 28 mars 1974, séjourneront à l'Assemblée Nationale du 1er septembre 1974 au 30 juin 1975. Les deux objectifs principaux de cette expérience sont les suivants:

a) permettre aux stagiaires d’acquérir une connaissance pratique du fonctionnement de l'Assemblée Nationale, du travail des députés et de l'organisation des institutions parlementaires.

b) contribuer à l'accomplissement des tâches qui incombent aux éléments constitutifs de l'Assemblée Nationale, notamment en assistant les députés dans l'exercice de leurs fonctions.
Eligibilité

Le programme s'adresse aux étudiants âgés de 21 à 35 ans (hommes et femmes), des disciplines universitaires consacrées à l'étude du gouvernement, des institutions et de la vie politique. Les candidats doivent être détenteurs d'au moins un diplôme universitaire de premier cycle, avoir une connaissance approfondie de la langue française et être citoyen canadien.

Les candidatures doivent parvenir au responsable avant le 30 janvier 1974. Pour toute information supplémentaire, s'adresser à:

Dear Professor Andrew:

May I, through the Newsletter, express my disgruntlement with respect to the new scale of membership fees proposed by the Board of Directors and adopted by the Canadian Political Science Association at its 1973 annual meeting?

The explanatory memorandum circulated prior to the meeting stated, "A sliding scale of membership fees, based on income levels, is being proposed in the belief that this will be more egalitarian and that it reflects the benefits to the older and better paid members occurring from professional activities over a long period of time." Currently, fees are $5 per year for students and $15 per year for regular members. Effective January 1, 1974, the following scale of fees will prevail:

<thead>
<tr>
<th>category</th>
<th>gross annual income</th>
<th>annual membership fee</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>(A)</td>
<td>under $5,000</td>
<td>$10</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(B)</td>
<td>$5,000 - 9,999</td>
<td>$15</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(C)</td>
<td>$10,000 - 14,999</td>
<td>$20</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(D)</td>
<td>$15,000 - 19,999</td>
<td>$25</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(E)</td>
<td>$20,000 - and over</td>
<td>$30</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Under the new fee structure, the cost of membership (to the nearest cent) per $1,000 of gross annual income works out as follows:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>category</th>
<th>membership cost</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>(A)</td>
<td>GREATER than $2.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(B)</td>
<td>$1.50 - $3.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(C)</td>
<td>$1.33 - $2.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(D)</td>
<td>$1.25 - $1.67</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(E)</td>
<td>$1.50 or less</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Clearly, membership is proportionately more expensive for those in the lower income brackets than for those in the upper strata. Presumably, all students fall in the lowest income levels, and their membership fees will thus be at least doubled. Curiously, the only other members whose fees will be as much as doubled are those with gross annual incomes of at least $20,000. I find it hard to believe that the members of the Board of Directors in particular and of the Association in general are such hidebound conservatives that they recoil from the idea of progressive taxation, yet the facts speak for themselves.

Having some appreciation for the ponderousness of most institutions, I realize that I am just tilting at windmills. Perhaps, though, the next time that membership fees are raised, the recommendations of the Board of Directors will match the Board's rhetoric.

Yours sincerely,

Peter Rodger
CPSA NEWS/NOUVELLES DE L'ACSP

The steering committee of the CPSA has agreed, pending formal ratification by the Board of Directors, to hire an Executive-Secretary who will look after all the day to day running of the Association and who will be supplied with part-time secretarial help. Mrs. Rita Archer, former secretary of the CPSA, who has had recent experience in another national association, will be returning as Executive-Secretary. This will be achieved within the present budget of the Association or, if there are additional expenses, this will be deducted from the Secretary-Treasurer's honorarium.

In view of these changes, John Trent has indicated his willingness to continue as Secretary-Treasurer for the time being. At the same time John continues to be of the opinion that this position should not be held by one person for too long a period. For this reason the membership of the CPSA is invited to submit names of people who could become Secretary-Treasurer.

STEERING COMMITTEE

The CPSA steering committee met on October 12-13, 1973. Two priorities for action this year have emerged, that of responding to government initiatives in the area of research and science policy and that of increasing job opportunities for graduates in political science.

The work the Association wishes to do in the area of science policy is briefly outlined in the description of the CPSA Science Policy Committee to be found later on in this Bulletin.

As for the question of increasing job opportunities for graduates in political science, this concern stems from the findings of the Manpower Committee, chaired by Fred Englemann. A future issue of the Bulletin will discuss the report in greater detail, as it has wide-spread implications for the profession. The authors estimated that while roughly 300 to 400 Canadians are currently studying in PhD programs, Canadian Universities are at the present time offering about 20 jobs in political science each year.

At the moment the steering committee intends to work on this problem in two ways, through meetings and through publications.
As a start, meetings are being organized, both at the federal and provincial levels, between members of the political science profession and government and education representatives. The objective of all these meetings is to make potential employers aware of the current oversupply of political scientists, get job descriptions changed so as to include political science graduates and have political science included as a category for hiring.

The projected publication programme would consist of three publications aimed at encouraging the placement of political science graduates: (a) A booklet describing political science education at various levels and the types of work for which political science students are equipped. This pamphlet would be sent to personnel officers and chief executive officers in government and business. (b) A pamphlet which the Association and all political science departments can use to distribute to potential political science students. The pamphlet would describe the components of political science education at the university, the various programmes that are available in Canada and the market outlet for political science degree holders. (c) An annual publication that would list and cross-index graduate students finishing their studies either at the level of the M.A., or the PhD. This publication would also be made available to potential employers. Do you have other suggestions about what the Association should be doing? If so, let the Association know.

The Committee would very much like to hear from people about recent experiences in looking for jobs in political science. For example, specific examples of job descriptions that do not take political science into consideration would provide concrete material for meetings with government representatives. The work of the Manpower Committee can be made more effective if they have support and information from the membership.

CHILE

The CPSA steering committee sent telegrams to the Hon. Mitchell Sharp and the Hon. Robert Andras supporting the Canadian Association of University Professors, resolution on Canada and the situation in Chile. We are reproducing the CAUT statement so as to inform CPSA members.

The CAUT sent requests for support of the resolution to local and provincial faculty associations and to all university presidents in Canada, as well as to all the Learned Societies.
The Board of the CAUT deplores the current violent attack on freedom, including academic freedom, in Chile and urges the Government of Canada to accept the position that Canada has a moral responsibility to aid the victims of political persecution in Chile. The Board urges in particular that the Department of External Affairs make known its willingness to exercise its good offices on behalf of imperilled faculty in the universities of Chile. CAUT further urges that the Government of Canada should provide assistance of several kinds including the provision of asylum in our Embassy in Chile, the allocation of special funds to maintain refugee academics as supernumerary staff at Canadian universities, and the relaxation of immigration requirements.

Students of Chilean universities are also in great danger and it is strongly recommended that a liberal interpretation of Canadian immigration laws be used to assist students to enter Canada. In addition, those Chilean students at present in Canada should be protected and suitably supported.

It is further recommended to the Department of External Affairs and the Department of Manpower and Immigration that this matter be handled with the same sense of urgency that very properly was shown in the cases of the refugees from Hungary, Czechoslovakia, and Uganda. We believe that it would be an offence to the conscience of the Canadian academic community to extend credits or provide other aid to the present regime in Chile before appropriate arrangements are made to care for all those in danger from the effects of the military coup.

REVIEW OF FEDERAL IMMIGRATION POLICY

The Canadian Political Science Association was requested this fall to contribute to the review of Canada's immigration policy. This request came in the form of a letter from the Honourable Robert Andras to the CPSA president in which the Minister outlined the procedures being taken to review the policy and urged participation from the CPSA. The federal government set up a task force to examine the problem and, according to the Minister, "it is vital that it (the task force) should have the benefit of views from those Canadian organizations like yours with special knowledge about, or concern with, the problems it must address. These problems cover an extremely wide field. Canada's future immigration policy must rest on soundly conceived objectives, including the rate at which we wish to see Canada's population grow, and the sort of future immigrants who will best contribute to our social, economic and cultural well-being."

In his reply, John Meisel (CPSA President) stated that "The Canadian Political Science Association as such reaches positions on questions of immigration policy only under the most exceptional circumstances, with respect to crises like the present situation in Chile or when academic freedom and intellectual inquiry seem to be threatened under other circumstances, as in the Meszaros case.

Individual members of the Association are of course greatly concerned and we shall publicize the review of Canadian policy in our news bulletin, inviting interested members to be heard.

There are, of course, many implications of immigration policy which affect the political process and on which political scientists are often competent to comment. I should therefore like to suggest that, whenever possible, the professional services of political scientists are employed by members of your staff preparing the documents necessary for an adequate review of Canadian policy."

CANADIAN POLITICS SEMINAR

Mr. Lee is putting up the following notice in London, and would be happy to hear from any CPSA member who might be passing through London or might have suggestions for speakers.

Mr. J.M. Lee (Birkbeck College) is arranging a series of seminars for graduate students in London who are interested in Canadian politics. The series under the general title of 'Policy studies: Canada/Recent Canadian History' is part of the programme of the Institute of Commonwealth Studies (27 Russell Square, W.C.I.) to which all enquiries should be directed.

These seminars will in principle be held every Wednesday fortnight in the first half of 1974, beginning on 23 January, but there is such pressure on the available space at the Institute, and some speakers from Canada may not be able to manage Wednesdays, that the timetable may be changed at short notice. Meetings may be held outside the Institute, and the alternative meeting places proposed are only two minutes walk from the Institute (Room 205 Birkbeck, or the Imperial History room in the Institute of Historical Research) and any visitor can always check the time and place from the Institute's enquiry desk.
The aim of the series is to provide a forum for examining 'the policy process' at federal, provincial and municipal level in Canada. The speakers will include visitors from Canada. The provisional timetable is:

CENTRE D'ÉCHANGE DE DONNÉES EN SCIENCES SOCIALES:

M. John Meisel, Président du Conseil d'administration du Centre d'échange de données en sciences sociales, a annoncé la nomination de M. Alfred Pietrzyk au poste de Directeur administratif.

Le Centre d'échange de données en sciences sociales est un projet appuyé financièrement par le Conseil des Arts du Canada et parrainé conjointement par l'Association des Universités et Collèges du Canada et le Conseil canadien de recherche en sciences sociales.

M. Pietrzyk est citoyen canadien et diplômé de l'University of Toronto. Il a participé auparavant au projet du Language Information Network and Clearinghouse System (LINCS) du Centre for Applied Linguistics d'Arlington, Virginie. A ce sujet, il a été l'instigateur et le principal créateur technique du LINCS.

Le LINCS ressemble en de nombreux points au Centre d'échange de données qui recueillera sous une forme lisible à la machine des renseignements sur les données en sciences sociales qui possèdent les chercheurs individus ainsi que les organismes publics et privés. Par la diffusion de ces renseignements, on prévoit que le Centre encouragera l'analyse secondaire ou la réutilisation des données et qu'il évitera la duplication des collections de données.

Le Centre servira les chercheurs et les établissements (privés et publics) en les informant des collections de données existantes. Il encouragera, par conséquent, le partage des données entre le nombre croissant d'archives de données, en particulier dans les universités.

The Committee on Political Sociology of ISA/IPSAPA (International Sociological Association/International Political Science Association) announces a new series of SAGE Professional Papers in Comparative Political Sociology.

The object of the series is to advance understanding of the relationship of politics and society by providing prompt publication and an international circulation for important work in the field of political sociology by scholars in Europe, America, Canada and elsewhere. The papers would range in length from 10,000 to 33,000 words, longer than a journal article and shorter than a book.

The papers will concentrate attention upon concepts and empirical analysis of primary concern for the understanding of modern Western nations. Some papers will deal with conditions in 'post-industrial' society; others will concentrate upon historical features important in the dynamic development of Western systems.

John Meisel (Queen's University) is on the editorial board and people with suitable manuscripts are invited to submit them to him.

The Centre for Foreign Policy Studies of the Department of Political Science at Dalhousie held a Seminar on Soviet Naval Developments in mid-October. We are including an outline of the seminar so that interested people can obtain copies of the proceedings from the Centre for Foreign Policy Studies.
The series of eleven articles by Admiral Gorshkov entitled "Navies in War and Peace" provide a useful focus for considering contemporary Soviet naval developments and the direction in which naval policy may be evolving.

The greater part of the series is concerned to demonstrate the continuing and increasing importance (both relative and absolute) of navies as instruments of state policy in peace and war. The articles can be interpreted variously as advocating policies and priorities which had not been adopted by the political leadership at the time of writing, or as announcing a newly determined policy and ordering of priorities, or as some mix of the two. Depending to some extent on the nature of that initial assessment, various other inferences can be drawn from the series concerning such matters as: the relative emphasis which should be placed on deterrent as opposed to warfighting capabilities; the nature and extent of opposition to naval aspirations which may derive from competing bureaucratic interests or from economic, ideological, pragmatic and military-doctrinal factors; arguments about the relative utility of naval power as an instrument of state policy in peacetime; debate about the range and scope of naval tasks in peace and in war, about the size and composition of the fleet required to carry out such tasks, and about alternative methods of discharging nominally naval tasks.

Related to the central question of whether Gorshkov was advocating or announcing a particular type of naval policy in these articles, is the question of whether or not some formal decision was reached in March/April of this year (or earlier) on the future direction of Soviet defence policy and on military doctrine concerning the nature of contemporary warfare. And if such decisions were taken, what the implications for naval policy would be.

The outline agenda for this year's seminar was designed to consider these various factors as well as the evolving pattern of naval deployments, shipbuilding programmes and public pronouncements. In all cases, the idea is to achieve a clearer understanding of past policy, while at the same time looking for any evidence of a change in policy, in whatever direction.

The actual shape of the seminar reflects the particular interest of participants and the projects which they already have in hand. The final agenda as set out below is a rough outline of the main areas of concentration which have emerged.

1. Contemporary Trends in Soviet Foreign Policy

   Paper by Marshall D. Shulman. Discussion including John Erickson, Franklyn Griffiths, Alvin Rubinstein, Uri Ra'anan and Ole Smolansky.
2. Political Objectives and Constraints

Uri Ra'anana – A reconstruction of the decision-making process underlying Soviet involvement in Egypt.

3. Economic and Technological Constraints

John Hardt – National economic priorities and the Navy's demand on resources.

Philip Hanson – Comparative levels of technology (East/West), and their relevance to the economic burden of defence.

Ray Hutchings – Soviet technological development and its influence on policy.

4. The Formulation of Policy

Matthew Gallagher – The defence establishment's input to national policy formulation.

John Erickson – The Navy's influence within the defence establishment, and its impact on foreign policy.

Ted Warner – The bureaucratic politics of weapons procurement.

5. Naval Power as an Instrument of Peace-time Policy

Ken Booth – The Problem of assessing the utility of a traditional instrument of coercion (naval forces) used in non-coercive roles, in a transforming international system.

Anne Kelly – Low-level naval diplomacy: the case of Iraq.

Bob Weinland – Crisis naval diplomacy: the case of Jordan.

Anne Kelly and Jamie McConnell – The Indo/Pakistan crisis.

Peter Vigor - The Soviet understanding and use of the terms:

(a) Command of the Sea (Gospodstvo na more)
