Le Bulletin est publié à tous les six mois, soit en mai et en novembre, à l'intention des membres de l'Association canadienne de science politique. Nous vous invitons à soumettre des textes qui revêtent un intérêt pour l'ensemble des membres, à savoir des avis sur des postes disponibles dans les universités, des invitations à soumettre un projet de communication pour conférences et des invitations à soumettre des propositions de publications d'articles dans des revues spécialisées. Veuillez présenter les textes au directeur (voir l'adresse ci-dessous) ou les faire parvenir directement par courrier électronique à l'adresse suivante : bulletin@trentu.ca. Nous suggérons que les documents soient présentés à l'aide des logiciels WordPerfect, Word (Microsoft), ou en format texte en clair.

The Bulletin is published twice yearly, in May and November, as a service to members of the Canadian Political Science Association. We welcome submissions of interest to the membership, such as notices of academic positions available, calls for papers for conferences and requests for submissions to academic journals. Material may be submitted to the editor (address below) or directly via electronic mail to: bulletin@trentu.ca. We would prefer that the material submitted be machine-readable, in either a WordPerfect, Microsoft Word, or plain text file format.

From the editor / un mot de la rédaction

As this issue of the Bulletin goes to press, a request for proposals to manage the Canadian Political Science Association's list server, POLCAN, is being circulated. I would like to take the opportunity to thank Andrew Heard of Simon Fraser University for making the server a vitally important part of interdepartmental and professional communication in Canada over the last few years and, perhaps most importantly, salute him for the patience and courtesy that he has shown from time to time when political broadsides were threatening to overload our mailboxes. More narrowly, much of the practical work of assembling the information published in the Bulletin has been eased by the very effective data collection and publication service that Andrew has provided.

Dans le dernier numéro du Bulletin, nous avons publié un rapport de Lloyd Brown-John concernant l'organisation de la réunion générale. Vous pourrez voir ci-dessous dans le rapport du Président que le Conseil de l'Association a demandé à la professeure Miriam Smith de l'Université Carleton de faire une enquête et de formuler quelques propositions alternatives.

The Spring issue of the Bulletin has traditionally been the issue that publishes annual reports; but as a contribution to our continuing series of reflections on working lives, David Docherty has contributed another piece on life in the field. It's a long way from the firing range at the Meaford training area to the halls of Westminster, but it appears that the scrum of lobbyists and academics vying for the time of members of Parliament can be almost as demanding. David closes with a plea for more effective use of new media of communication which can facilitate labour-intensive research on Canadian legislative behaviour.

Une fois de plus, je voudrais signaler l'importance de la communication avec tous les diplômé-e-s en Sciences Politiques qui travaillent dans le secteur public ou dans le monde du commerce. Si vous désirez me communiquer quelques idées ou remarques pour la rubrique de "la vie quotidienne d'un-e professionnel-le," je serai ravi de les recevoir.

Finally, both federal and provincial commitments to the funding of post-secondary education have had a very direct impact on our working lives in the last ten years. Whether, for example, the commitment to research excellence and industrial spin-offs can compensate for the decline in base funding (among many other issues) is more than an academic public policy question for members of the Association. Dr Patricia Clement, President of the Humanities and Social Sciences Federation of Canada (which includes the CPSA as a federated member), has contributed a report which outlines the continuing efforts of the HSSFC to advance our collective interests.

Nominations for Officers of the Canadian Political Association

In accordance with the provisions of article 8.2 of the Constitution of the Canadian Political Science Association, the Nominating Committee invites nominations for the following positions on the Board of Directors: President-elect, five (5) Members-at-Large and one (1) graduate student member.

You are reminded that each nomination requires the signatures of two proposers and that it must be accompanied by a statement of acceptance signed by the nominee, as well as by the nominee's 100-word curriculum vitae.

All participants in these procedures must be paid-up members of the Association. You are further reminded that voting is by mail ballot.

Nominations must be received before November 15, 2001 by the Secretary-Treasurer, Canadian Political Science Association, Suite 204, 260 Dalhousie Street, Ottawa, Ontario K1N 7E4.

Conseil d'administration de l'Association canadienne de science politique: mises en candidatures

Selon l'article 8.2 de la Constitution, le Comité des candidatures invite les membres de l'Association canadienne de science politique à proposer des candidat(e)s aux postes suivants au Conseil d'administration: Président(e)-désigné(e), cinq (5) conseillers(ères) ainsi qu'un (1) membre choisi parmi les étudiant(e)s de 2^e et 3^e cycle.

Il faut que chaque candidature soit accompagnée de la signature de deux membres, d'un avis d'acceptation signé par la personne nommée, ainsi que du curriculum vitae de celle-ci d'environ 100 mots.

Pour être candidat(e) ou pour présenter une candidature, il faut être membre en règle de l'Association. Veuillez prendre note que l'élection se fera par courrier.

Les mises en candidatures doivent parvenir d'ici le 15 novembre 2001, au Secrétaire-trésorier, Association canadienne de science politique, Bureau 204, 260, rue Dalhousie, Ottawa, Ontario K1N 7E4.

President's Remarks / Le mot du président

Kenneth McRoberts

I am pleased to begin my second report to the CPSA members with the announcement of an important new prize. At its December meeting, the Board of Directors agreed to establish the John McMenemy Prize, to honour Professor McMenemy (Wilfrid Laurier) for his many years of exceptional service as Administrative Editor of CJPS. Each year the prize will be awarded to what has been judged to be the best article published in the Journal during that year. The first prize, based on Volume XXXIII will be awarded at the 2001 Meetings.

At the Meetings we will also be reporting on this year's competitions for two other prizes: the Vincent Lemieux prize for the best dissertation and the Donald V. Smiley Prize for the best book on Canadian government and politics.

We have begun the search for a new English-language editorial team for the CJPS, to serve 2002-2005. The Chair of the Search Committee, Professor Richard Vernon (Western Ontario) has recently contacted departments to solicit proposals to host the next team. The Board of Directors will appoint the new team at its Fall meeting.

Also with respect to the CJPS, you will notice that upon renewal of your membership you will receive an identification number and password which will give you electronic access to the 2001 issues of the Journal.

This year marks the 25th anniversary of the Ontario Legislative Internship Programme. I will have the pleasure of representing the CPSA at a special reception at Queen's Park.

Elsewhere in this issue of the Bulletin you will find a listing of the programme committee for the 2002 Annual Meetings, with Bill Cross (Mount Allison) as chair. They are already hard at work and would welcome your proposals. By the same token, the Board has struck a committee under the leadership of Miriam Smith to develop ideas for the long-term future of the Meetings. You may be hearing from them soon.

Finally, as chair of this year's nominating committee, I am pleased to announce the results of this year's election. Grace Skogstad (Toronto) has been elected President-elect. The new members of the Board are: Avigail Eisenberg (Victoria), Laura MacDonald (Carleton), Louis Massicotte (Montréal), Éric Montpetit (ÉNA), and Kim Richard Nossal (McMaster). I would like to thank the several other members who let their names stand and express my appreciation to the other members of the nominating committee: Caroline Andrew (Ottawa), Gordon Mace (Laval) and Lisa Young (Calgary).

In closing, I would like to express my deep appreciation to our Executive Director, Michelle Hopkins. Throughout my term as President, Michelle has been unstinting in providing sympathetic and invaluable support. I cannot thank her enough.

J'ai le vif plaisir de commencer mon deuxième rapport aux membres de l'ACSP par l'annonce d'un important nouveau prix. À sa réunion de décembre, le conseil d'administration s'est entendu sur la création du Prix John-McMenemy en hommage à monsieur McMenemy (Wilfrid Laurier) pour ses nombreuses années de service exceptionnel comme rédacteur administratif de la RCSP. Chaque année, le prix sera décerné à l'auteur du meilleur article de la Revue au cours de l'année. Le lauréat ou la lauréate du premier prix, qui sera basé sur le Volume XXXIII, sera annoncé lors du congrès de 2001.

Au cours de ce congrès, nous dévoilerons aussi les noms des lauréats de nos deux autres prix dans le cadre des concours de cette année: le Prix Vincent-Lemieux pour la meilleure thèse de doctorat et le Prix Donald-Smiley pour le meilleur livre sur la politique et le gouvernement canadiens.

Nous avons commencé à chercher une nouvelle équipe de rédaction anglophone pour la RCSP pour la période 2002-2005. Le président du comité de recherche, Richard Vernon (Western Ontario), a communiqué récemment avec les départements afin de solliciter des propositions à ce sujet. Le conseil d'administration nommera la nouvelle équipe lors de sa réunion à l'automne.

Toujours au sujet de la RCSP, vous remarquerez que, lors du renouvellement de votre cotisation, vous recevrez un numéro d'identification et un mot de passe qui vous donneront accès par voie électronique aux numéros de 2001.

Cette année marque le 25^e anniversaire du Programme de stage à l'Assemblée législative de l'Ontario. J'aurai le plaisir de représenter l'ACSP lors d'une réception spéciale à Queen's Park.

Ailleurs dans ce numéro du Bulletin, vous trouverez une liste des membres du comité du programme du congrès de 2002, comité présidé par Bill Cross (Mount Allison). Ses membres se sont déjà mis à la tâche et attendent vos propositions. Dans le même esprit, le conseil d'administration a mis sur pied un comité, présidé par Miriam Smith, en vue d'élaborer des idées pour l'avenir à long terme de notre congrès. Vous aurez peut-être des nouvelles de ce comité bientôt.

Enfin, à titre de président du comité des candidatures, j'ai le plaisir d'annoncer les résultats des élections de cette année. Grace Skogstad (Toronto) a été élue présidente désignée. Les nouveaux membres du conseil sont: Avigail Eisenberg (Victoria), Laura MacDonald (Carleton), Louis Massicotte (Montréal), Éric Montpetit (ÉNAP) et Kim Richard Nossal (McMaster). Je tiens à remercier toutes les autres personnes qui étaient candidates ainsi que les autres membres du comité des candidatures: Caroline Andrew (Ottawa), Gordon Mace (Laval) et Lisa Young (Calgary).

En terminant, je veux exprimer toute ma gratitude à la directrice générale, Michelle Hopkins. Tout au long de mon mandat comme président, Michelle n'a ménagé aucun effort pour m'apporter son soutien précieux et enthousiaste. Qu'elle en soit ici infiniment remerciée.

JOHN McMENEMY PRIZE 2002

The Canadian Political Science Association and the Société québécoise de science politique proudly announce the second annual competition for the John McMenemy Prize. The certificate of award will be made to the author or authors of the best article, in English or French, published in volume XXXIV (2001) of the Canadian Journal of Political Science. The recipient(s) of the prize will also be awarded five 2003 memberships in the Canadian Political Science Association and the Société québécoise de science politique to be distributed to five students.

The prize was established in honour of the Journal's Administrative Editor, Professor John McMenemy of Wilfrid Laurier University, who has, since 1977, contributed greatly to the success of the Association and the Société's flagship journal. The Canadian Journal of Political Science, a quarterly journal of the highest international standards, is distributed to approximately 2000 scholars and institutions around the world.

The annual jury will consist of two members of the Editorial Board, three members of the Editorial Advisory Board, one CPSA Board member and one SQSP Board member. The 2002 prize recipient(s) will be announced at the 2002 Annual General Meeting of the Canadian Political Science Association to be held in Toronto.

PRIX JOHN-McMENEMY 2002

L'Association canadienne de science politique et la Société québécoise de science politique sont heureuses d'annoncer la tenue du deuxième concours en vue du Prix John-McMenemy, qui sera décerné à l'auteur (ou les auteurs) du meilleur article français ou anglais publié dans le volume XXXIV (2001) de la Revue canadienne de science politique. Le(s) lauréat(s) recevra cinq adhésions à l'Association canadienne de science politique ainsi qu'à la Société québécoise de science politique pour l'année 2003, pour les distribuer à cinq étudiants.

Le prix a été créé afin de rendre hommage au directeur administratif de la Revue, M. John McMenemy, de l'Université Wilfrid Laurier. Depuis 1977, M. McMenemy a grandement contribué au succès de la revue de l'Association et de la Société. La Revue canadienne de science politique, publiée quatre fois par année, respecte les normes internationales les plus élevées; elle est distribuée à plus de 2 000 chercheurs et institutions universitaires à travers le monde entier.

Le comité de sélection sera composé de deux membres du comité de rédaction, de trois membres du comité consultatif de rédaction, d'un membre du Conseil d'administration de l'Acsp et d'un membre du Conseil d'administration de la SQSP. Le(s) lauréat(s) du prix John-McMenemy 2002 sera dévoilé lors de la Réunion annuelle générale de l'Association canadienne de science politique qui se tiendra en 2002 à Toronto.

2002 Annual Conference /
Congrès annuel 2002

The 2002 CPSA meetings will be held at The University of Toronto, May 29, 30 and 31. The Call for Papers will be issued shortly and will be mailed to all members of the Association with the next two issues of the Canadian Journal of Political Science. The Call will also be available on the Association's web page at:

<http://www.uottawa.ca/associations/cpsa-acsp/>

The 2002 Programme Committee is planning to introduce some new features to the annual conference. These include the introduction of a conference theme and day long workshops. Workshops will essentially be 'mini-conferences' organized by each section head around a particular theme. Full details on all of this will be included in the Call for Papers. We hope that having the meetings in Toronto will encourage a large turnout and provide the Association with an opportunity to showcase the best of our discipline. The Programme Committee is hard at work to ensure that the 2002 conference will indeed be memorable. Of course, the success of the conference is dependent on members seeing it as a primary place for the dissemination of their research findings. We hope everyone will put the CPSA meetings at the top their conference plans for 2002.

We look forward to seeing you in Toronto next May!

* * * * *

Le congrès annuel 2002 de l'ACSP se tiendront à l'Université de Toronto les 29, 30 et 31 mai. Les membres de l'Association recevront sous peu l'invitation à soumettre un projet de communication qui leur sera envoyée avec les deux prochains numéros de la Revue canadienne de science politique. L'invitation sera également disponible sur le site web de l'Association à:

<http://www.uottawa.ca/associations/cpsa-acsp/>

Le comité du programme 2002 planifie mettre en place de nouvelles composantes au congrès annuel. Il s'agira, entre autres, de présenter le congrès sous un thème et d'offrir des ateliers d'une journée. Les ateliers tiendront lieu de mini-congrès mis sur pied par les responsables de sections réunis autour d'un seul thème. L'information complète sur ces nouvelles composantes paraîtra dans l'invitation à soumettre un projet de communication. Nous espérons que la tenue du congrès à Toronto attirera un grand nombre de participants et permettra à l'Association de montrer le meilleur de notre discipline. Le comité du programme multiplie ses efforts afin de rendre inoubliable le congrès 2002. La réussite du congrès repose en effet sur la place que lui offriront les membres pour la diffusion des résultats de recherches. Nous espérons que chacun de vous avez inscrit le congrès 2002 de l'Association au sommet de vos priorités, et nous souhaitons vivement vous retrouver parmi nous à Toronto en mai prochain!

Out of Town? Alone? Need Someone to Talk to?

David C. Docherty*
Wilfrid Laurier University

As academics we have all been there. Out of town on research, away from family and loved ones. Even if you are familiar with the city you're in, it can get lonely. You know some other professors in the town you are visiting but have not been successful in getting a hold of them. We can be an elusive bunch when we want to be. What you are looking for is some good, intellectually stimulating conversation. If you are really lucky, it might even involve the project you are working on. Well, if you are in London, the best place to hang out is not LSE, the British Library or any of the University of London's research units, but rather the Central Lobby of Westminster. For there, over the space of any four days, you are virtually guaranteed to meet enough academics to satisfy a conference organizer desperate for discussions.

In fact, you can't swing an Erskine May without hitting an academic at Westminster. And what are they there for? To interview MPs, of course. Intellectual paparazzi, with note books and tape recorders subbing for cameras, they hang around the Central Lobby looking for willing members to grant a few minutes time. I should know, I am one of them.

* David Docherty is an Associate Professor of Political Science at Wilfrid Laurier University. From 1984 to 1987 he worked in the Legislative Assembly at Queen's Park. His research speciality is the Parliament of Canada and comparative legislative studies. He is presently working on two books, the first a text book on the Parliament of Canada and the second a comparative analysis of political careers in Canada and Great Britain.

In late February I was in London doing some research on a comparative Canadian-UK study of political career cycles. With the help of a colleague in London, I had arranged to interview a number of MPs. On my second day there, I was rushing through the Lobby, late for the second of a back-to-back set of interviews. As the Porter was calling my name, I thought I heard another voice say "David" but I rushed on. The next day, I was sitting in the lobby waiting to be paged for my next appointment when I saw the person behind the voice. "Meg, how are you?" "Great, I saw you whipping past yesterday, late for McKenna, I see you are interviewing too. Have you seen Greg, he is in town as well."

Sure enough, within an hour Greg popped up in the Central Lobby. He too was interviewing. Greg knew of a fourth academic in town. Later that day, in an interview with one MP, I asked a question about constituency work and representation. The member looked at me with some glee. "I'm glad you asked that," she said "I was filling in a survey last week for someone from Exeter who asked that same question. I really didn't like the answer I gave and have thought about it a lot since then. Do you know him and will you be seeing him?"

"I know him, but we haven't planned to meet," I said, by this time entirely confident I would see him on the way out. I didn't. But the next day, there he was, sitting beneath the statue of Henry III. Academic number five, that I knew of.

The frightening thing is, I am not making any of this up. In terms of size, in the Central Lobby at any time, there are first tourists, then academics and finally constituents. In terms of pecking order, we rank last, behind tourists. And who can blame the members? Constituents want help and are voters, tourists just want to look around. Academics are increasingly fighting for a Member's time, with little to offer in return, beside some nebulous appeal to civic duty and the eternal promise that "our work might help the cause of reform" [as if Tony Blair is simply waiting for one more academic study on the need to free up the backbench before being spurred into action].

And if it is bad at Westminster, the scene at the new Scottish Parliament is even worse. There is more interest among social scientists in the new Scottish members than there is among geneticists for Dolly the cloned sheep. I was in Scotland when the news broke that Dolly was isolated from all visitors (including scientists) during the hoof and mouth crisis. From my hotel room I could almost hear the envious sighs of the Scottish members. Even when on display, Dolly at least has a standard answer. After a few "bahhs" there is no point in pursuing your line of questioning any further. Social scientists just want to probe further and further, every answer leading to a new question.

Politicians on Parliament Hill in Ottawa have yet to achieve the vaunted celebrity status of their UK (or US) cousins, but they are not far away from it either. There is an increasingly high demand for interviews from professors and graduate students. The Canadian members I speak to are very gracious, but many tell me that they are getting tired of questionnaires and interview requests. Some of the surveys and interviews try to probe members' stances on different public policies; but most deal with the members of parliament themselves, usually trying to uncover career patterns and develop broader theories of the practice of representation.

For those of us who have an interest in political careers, that fact that the often ignored world of politicians (and backbenchers in Westminster systems) is gaining popularity should be good news. And by and large it is. Any fear we have that our ideas and research niches are about to be trod upon by a young academic doing her or his doctoral work on parliament is more than offset by the joy we feel for having another soul join our small and quirky flock.

But more researchers in this field also carries with it a potential downside and one we should take quite seriously. Members of parliament are, justifiably, getting tired of talking to us and answering our mail. Interview and survey fatigue is setting in. And while this is a problem for all survey researchers, when you have a limited universe to start with (301 Canadian MPs, for example) the problem of non-responses can be quite worrisome. Trying to back up surveys with interviews can be even harder. Forget about the standard one hundred required interviews. This constitutes over fourteen per cent of the universe of members at Westminster, a third of the universe in Canada and nearly two thirds in Scotland. These numbers include cabinet, so if we remove them and remember that some members (and parties) simply refuse to participate in research projects, the cohort willing to talk to us becomes smaller and increasing our sample becomes even more difficult.

We should also remember that we have a self-interest in not going back to the well too often. We want access to members for our own purposes, but we want to go back to them again at some point and we also want to make sure we don't give academics a bad name and spoil the work plans for others.

So what should/can we do? One option is simply to stop interviewing and surveying members. We could rely more and more on biographical and secondary data sources (parliamentary guides, election results, voting records, etc). Most of us use some of these data already. And many excellent papers and books have been written in the absence of actually talking to members of parliament. But such a move would neither be an appropriate response to the problem nor would it constitute sound methodological practice.

Interview and survey research is a valid and important component of the academic research exercise. Some researchers rely on it exclusively, others use it to supplement secondary research work. Ignoring the personal touches and nuances of survey and interview data might encourage us to follow a dangerous research agenda, the likes of which can increasingly, and unfortunately, be found in the pages of more and more US political science journals. As the Atlantic Monthly commented, some of the leading researchers on the US Congress have difficulty naming more than a dozen members of Congress. This research on Congressional behaviour too often stands in isolation from the reality of elected life.

We need survey and interview data on members of parliament. But we need to be smart in how we go about gathering the information we need. Some months ago, I put out a message on POLCAN stating that I was in the process of putting together an MP survey instrument. I asked if anyone else was planning one and if so, could we combine our efforts. Among the responses I received, no one indicated they were doing a survey in the next twelve months. I have since discovered from MPs that they have in fact received three similar surveys during that time (excluding my own). Are people unwilling to work on joint projects or was I simply not getting the word around effectively? Probably a little of both.

If we want to avoid causing survey fatigue we must work co-operatively. This means sharing survey instruments and perhaps even doubling up on interviews. When I was in the UK I went to some interviews with someone from the Hansard Society (a non-partisan research group). He accompanied me to some interviews in Ottawa. I have shared my interview results with Meg (see above) and she has done likewise with hers.

I am not suggesting that my approach is a model of research ingenuity and efficiency. Hardly, in fact some of this collaboration was borne out of necessity. Without Meg's assistance, I would not have the data I require for my work. In discussing my research with my acquaintance from the Hansard Society, it became apparent that there was overlap and that both of us needed aid in setting up our respective overseas interviews.

This type of co-operation must increase. All of us must make better use of POLCAN and other server lists to let our peers know what we are doing and when we are doing it. Doubling up on surveys and interviews can only be beneficial. Not only will it save time (and limited research dollars) it also helps eliminate frustration from members being asked comparable questions over and over again.

We might even be able to work out, in a format not too dissimilar from the election study folks, a bi-annual survey of MPs. The upside of this would be a national team, with names from across the country (not the least strength of this would be the increased response rate if regional return mailing addresses were used). There would be no method of stopping anyone from doing their own survey, nor should there be. But if a national members' survey were established, and worked out co-operatively, most researchers would quickly recognize the benefits of being part of the team.

Of course, when we were in Ottawa, or in a different capital city, this would mean finding another way to meet fellow academics. But maybe we should be spending more time in bars, I mean libraries, anyway.

HSSFC activity report / Rapport sur les activités de la FCSHS

Patricia Clements, DPhil
President / Présidente*

At the November 2000 meeting of the General Assembly, the incoming President, Dr Patricia Clements, presented the report of her Task Force on Communications. The report focused on both internal communications, between the Federation and its 67 member associations and 70 universities and colleges, and external communications, with the Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council (SSHRC) as well as with politicians and the media.

For Canadian universities, these are important days. Federal — and some provincial — initiatives are beginning at last to address the needs of our cash-starved institutions. These initiatives include some good news for the social sciences and humanities: SSHRC's budget is very significantly increased; the CFI has made it clear that its mandate includes support to research in the human sciences; some attention is given to upcoming academic staffing needs in the Canada Research Chairs program. But new funding is nevertheless very focused on the science, including biomedical science, and technology side of the house, and planning for the future of research and education in the social sciences and humanities is far from adequate. There is a "centripetal" effect in current funding: dollars bring dollars. The Canada Research Chairs, for instance, are allocated on a formula based on the existing budgets of the granting councils — meaning that the proportion allocated to the social sciences and humanities builds into it an already painful inadequacy of research support.

At the same time, students in large numbers continue to choose to study in our areas, and research on social and cultural issues continues to be urgently necessary.

In this context, we must do everything to ensure that the voice of our disciplines is strong and clear and that it be heard. This is a moment for the Federation to give critical attention to its communications strategy, both internal (so that we consolidate our collective strength) and external (so that we have impact in decision-making). This year, in our first working together, the new Executive and the Staff of the Federation are working on a Strategic Plan aimed at achieving the following goals:

* Humanities and Social Sciences Federation of Canada / la Fédération canadienne des sciences humaines et sociales.

- strengthening member associations;
- raising the profile of the Federation on university campuses;
- developing the effectiveness of our partnership with SSHRC; and
- reinforcing the Government Lobby and increasing awareness of the humanities and social sciences in interested communities.

All of these goals support the overall mandate of the Federation. They are designed to give clear purpose and strength to our collective voice. I would be grateful to have any comments or input on these issues (c/o jawright@hssfc.ca). Other Federation activities over the coming year include:

- Congress 2001 at Université Laval;
- Conducting a survey on the implementation of the Tri-Council Policy on Ethical Conduct for Research Involving Humans at the request of SSHRC;
- Monitoring the impact of the Canada Research Chairs and other funding initiatives on humanities and social sciences;
- Sponsoring a Task Force on the condition of Canadian university language programs, chaired by David Graham of Memorial University.

Finally, the Federation invites its members to help celebrate the 60th Anniversary of the Aid to Scholarly Publications Programme, which has been made a vitally important contribution to the dissemination of scholarly research in Canada over its history. For more information on the celebrations and all of our activities and programmes, please consult our web site at:

Lors de la réunion de l'Assemblée générale en novembre 2000, la Présidente désignée, M^{me} Patricia Clements, a présenté le rapport de son Groupe de travail sur les communications. Le rapport se concentrait non seulement sur les communications internes, entre la Fédération et ses 67 associations membres et ses 70 membres institutionnels, mais aussi sur les communications externes avec le Conseil de recherches en sciences humaines (CRSH) ainsi qu'avec les députés et les médias.

Les universités canadiennes se trouvent dans une période critique. Des initiatives fédérales et, dans une moindre mesure, provinciales, commencent enfin à subvenir aux besoins de nos institutions en manque d'argent. Certaines des ces initiatives sont très positives pour les sciences humaines et sociales: le budget du CRSH a augmenté de façon importante; le mandat de la FCI comprend maintenant les sciences humaines; les Chaires de recherche du Canada commencent à porter plus d'attention aux besoins futurs des facultés que nous représentons. Cependant, la plupart des initiatives se trouvent du côté des sciences pures, y compris les sciences biomédicales, et la technologie. L'élaboration des projets pour l'avenir de la recherche et de l'éducation en sciences humaines et sociales est loin d'être adéquate. Il y a un effet «centripète» en ce qui concerne le financement actuel selon lequel des dollars en apportent d'autres. Par exemple, les Chaires de recherche du Canada sont allouées selon un formulaire basé sur les budgets des conseils subventionnaires, ce qui veut dire que la proportion allouée aux sciences sociales et humaines est déjà et sera toujours insuffisante pour appuyer la recherche.

En même temps, un grand nombre d'étudiantes et d'étudiants continuent de choisir les sciences sociales et humaines et la recherche sur des questions sociales et culturelles devient de plus en plus nécessaire.

Dans un tel contexte, il faut nous assurer que la voix de nos disciplines soit forte et claire afin qu'on puisse bien l'entendre. Le moment est choisi pour la Fédération de prêter une attention toute particulière à sa stratégie de communications, non seulement à l'interne (afin de consolider notre force collective) mais aussi à l'externe (afin d'exercer une influence sur les décisions). Cette année, notre première à travailler ensemble, le nouveau Comité exécutif et le personnel de la Fédération travaillent sur un plan stratégique dans le but d'atteindre les objectifs suivants:

- renforcer nos associations membres;
- hausser le profil de la Fédération sur les campus;
- accroître l'efficacité de notre partenariat avec le CRSH; et
- renforcer les pressions auprès du gouvernement et accentuer la sensibilisation aux sciences humaines et sociales chez les groupes intéressés.

Tous ces objectifs appuient le mandat général de la Fédération. Ils sont conçus pour renforcer notre voix collective. Je vous serais très reconnaissante de me faire parvenir vos commentaires ou vos suggestions sur ces questions (a/s de: jawright@hssfc.ca). D'autres activités de la Fédération qui auront lieu au courant de l'année:

- Le Congrès 2001 à l'Université Laval;

- Une consultation auprès des universités afin d'obtenir des informations et des suggestions quant à l'impact de la mise en œuvre de la politique sur l'éthique de la recherche avec des êtres humains;
- Une surveillance continue de l'impact des Chaires de recherches du Canada et d'autres initiatives de financement sur les sciences humaines et sociales;
- Le parrainage d'un Groupe de travail, présidé par M. David Graham de Memorial University, sur la situation actuelle des programmes en langues modernes dans les universités canadiennes.

Enfin, la Fédération invite ses membres à se joindre à elle pour célébrer le 60^{ième} anniversaire du Programme d'aide à l'édition savante; un programme qui a contribué d'une façon importante à la diffusion de la recherche au Canada. Programme de stage parlementaire / Canadian Parliamentary Internship Rapport / Report 2000-2001

Leslie A. Pal, Directeur / Director
Université Carleton University

Il me fait plaisir de vous présenter mon troisième rapport annuel sur le programme de stage parlementaire.

L'honorable Peter Milliken, le président actuel de la Chambre des communes, ainsi que son prédécesseur, l'honorable Gilbert Parent, ont exprimé leur attachement au programme et convenu d'agir en tant que présidents d'honneur de l'Association des anciens stagiaires du programme.

Je tiens à remercier M. William Corbett, le greffier de la Chambre des communes, pour l'appui qu'il accorde à notre programme. Il a eu la bonté de nous fournir les services de l'un des membres de son personnel, Mme JoAnne Cartwright, qui a agi en tant qu'administratrice du programme. Mme Audrey O'Brien, le greffier adjoint, a également généreusement offert son temps et ses précieux conseils au programme.

L'Association a grandement aidé de différentes façons. Et d'une façon plus particulière, j'aimerais remercier Mme Michelle Hopkins pour son soutien administratif.

Le programme continue de bénéficier d'un solide appui de la part de ses commanditaires ainsi que de plusieurs amis, ce qui a permis d'abord de le réaliser, mais également de contribuer à son dynamisme et à ses valeurs au profit de ses stagiaires.

Stagiaires

Depuis la fin de janvier 2001, 60 candidats et candidates nous ont fait parvenir leur formulaire de demande, représentant ainsi une diminution du nombre de demandes pour une quatrième année consécutive. J'étais préoccupé d'un si petit nombre de stagiaires disponibles pour l'année prochaine. Par conséquent, j'ai décidé de prolonger la période des demandes d'un mois et de lancer, avec l'aide de Michelle Hopkins, un appel spécial aux collègues afin qu'ils soumettent le programme à l'attention de leurs étudiants.

La réponse a dépassé de loin nos attentes. À la fin de février 2001, nous avons reçu plus de 250 demandes, ce qui représentait le plus grand nombre de demandes depuis les dernières années. Ceci nous porte à croire qu'une approche directe par l'entremise du réseau des collègues représente la meilleure façon de rejoindre d'éventuels candidats.

Les stagiaires pour l'année 2000-2001 sont les suivants:

Maya Bevan

Maya Bevan est née à Kingston, en Ontario; cependant, elle a surtout vécu à Thunder Bay. Elle a déménagé à London afin de poursuivre ses études post-secondaires et terminer une maîtrise ès Arts en littérature comparée. Sa thèse intitulée: Non-Fiction Eutopias: Contradiction, Complexity, Consilience, lui a permis d'étudier la réconciliation dans une variété de disciplines, comme la littérature et les mathématiques. Elle a également publié dans la revue Arachne un article intitulé: «Realistic Idealism: The Future of the United Nations», une publication universitaire multidisciplinaire. Elle a étudié la langue, la littérature et la culture à l'Université de Moscou et ses intérêts touchent la voix, le Tae Kwon Do et le patin artistique.

Jennifer Chandler

baccalauréat ès Arts en science politique, avec la mention grande distinction de l'Université McGill. Elle a passé un été à Florence, en Italie, et parle couramment l'italien. De plus, elle a voyagé partout en Europe. L'an dernier, Jennifer a élaboré une campagne d'information et dirigé les ventes en tant que coordonnatrice de la mise en marché auprès d'une entreprise en expansion de Montréal. Elle participe activement aux activités de l'Association des étudiants des Nations Unies de McGill et a travaillé comme journaliste pour plusieurs quotidiens de Montréal. Elle a œuvré dans le domaine de l'éducation à titre de bénévole et comme enseignante adjointe et orienteur pour son école secondaire où elle a enseigné le programme périscolaire des débats pendant six ans.

Caitlin Hayward

Caitlin Hayward vient de terminer un baccalauréat ès Arts à l'Université Mount Allison avec une mention très honorable en science politique et une majeure en histoire. Elle a grandement participé au gouvernement étudiant, notamment en tant que vice-présidente (Affaires universitaires) du conseil d'administration des étudiants pendant sa quatrième année. Elle a également passé deux ans comme rédactrice en chef d'une section de l'Argosy, le journal des étudiants de l'Université Mount Allison. Elle est née à Toronto et a fréquenté l'École publique Gabrielle Roy et l'Institut collégial du Nord de Toronto avant de traverser le Nouveau-Brunswick pour fréquenter Mount Allison. Elle n'a pas beaucoup voyagé sur le continent nord-américain mais elle rêve de parcourir cette partie du monde pendant son stage et dans les années qui suivront. Ses intérêts touchent l'histoire des constitutions modernes et la théorie politique.

Carolyn Helgeland West

Carolyn est originaire de Calgary, en Alberta, et elle vient de terminer un baccalauréat ès Arts (avec distinction) en science politique à l'Université de l'Alberta, à Edmonton. Elle a obtenu des bourses à plusieurs reprises, y compris une bourse de citation d'honneur du chancelier et un prix Alison White avec distinction de la faculté des Arts. Elle a réussi à trouver un équilibre entre ses études et ses nombreuses activités paraprofessionnelles: par exemple, elle a joué dans l'orchestre des jeunes d'Edmonton et s'est portée volontaire auprès du centre des services aux étudiants handicapés situé sur le campus. Elle a occupé plusieurs postes au Parlement surtout comme page parlementaire et guide. Avant de retourner une fois de plus dans la capitale nationale à titre de stagiaire, elle a passé trois mois en France comme guide au Monument commémoratif du Canada à Vimy. Elle souhaite pouvoir mettre ses connaissances et son expérience au service de son pays, peut-être en tant que spécialiste du droit commercial international.

Carrolyn Johnston

Carrolyn est née et a grandi dans la région d'Ottawa. Elle a obtenu un diplôme de l'Université d'Ottawa avec spécialisation en science politique. Au cours de sa première année d'université, elle a travaillé à titre de page parlementaire, une expérience qui a stimulé son intérêt pour le processus parlementaire et la politique canadienne de façon générale. Diplômée universitaire, elle s'est installée à Osaka, au Japon, où elle a enseigné l'anglais pendant une année scolaire. Pendant les trois dernières années, Carrolyn a travaillé dans l'industrie des télécommunications dans les domaines des affaires gouvernementales et des ventes. Elle demeure très active en ce qui concerne les questions qui touchent les femmes, y compris, l'organisation Take Back the Night March d'Ottawa pendant deux ans et elle agit actuellement à titre de consultante lors de situations de crises pour le Centre d'aide aux victimes de viol d'Ottawa. Carrolyn retournera à l'Université de Toronto l'automne prochain afin d'y poursuivre une maîtrise en travail social.

Nathalie Labonté

Nathalie est originaire du Saguenay Lac-St-Jean au Québec. Elle a obtenu un baccalauréat en musique avec une majeure en flûte du Conservatoire du Québec à Chicoutimi. Elle termine actuellement un baccalauréat en sciences sociales avec une spécialisation en anthropologie et dans le domaine des droits de la personne à l'Université Carleton. L'an passé, Nathalie a étudié au Japon à l'Université Kansai Gaidai la langue et la culture japonaises, ainsi que les principales idéologies religieuses en Asie, les relations politiques sino-japonaises et la récente crise économique en Asie. Pendant l'été 2000, Nathalie a reçu une bourse de l'UNESCO par l'entremise d'une organisation non-gouvernementale nommée «PEACEBOAT». Cette bourse lui a permis de voyager par bateau dans plus de 17 pays en Europe, en Afrique, en Asie et en Amérique du Nord, où avaient lieu différentes présentations sur la culture, l'économie et les situations politiques de ces différents pays. En terme d'emploi, elle a joué de la flûte dans des gardes de cérémonies pendant cinq années consécutives et travaillé à titre de page à la Chambre des communes. Elle a l'intention d'obtenir une maîtrise en relations internationales et travailler dans le domaine du développement international.

Alice MacLachlan

Alice est née à Halifax, en Nouvelle-Écosse. Elle a grandi à cet endroit ainsi qu'à Kingston, en Ontario, et a vécu à Londres, au Royaume-Uni, pendant une année lors d'un congé sabbatique familial. Elle a voyagé partout en Europe et en Asie du sud-est, ce qui a stimulé son intérêt pour les affaires internationales. Elle a participé à des débats et à des conférences sur la jeunesse avant de fréquenter le collège Pearson, un United World College. Alice a terminé son baccalauréat en philosophie à l'Université de Cambridge en Angleterre.

Robert Nichols

Robert est originaire de l'Alberta. Il a obtenu un baccalauréat ès Arts en études politiques du collège universitaire Augustana, avec grande distinction et gagné la médaille du gouverneur général pour la moyenne cumulative la plus élevée. C'est également à cette université qu'il a participé au gouvernement étudiant, agissant pendant deux ans à titre de vice-président du syndicat des étudiants et à titre de membre exécutif du groupe de pression étudiant ACTISEC (Alberta Colleges and Technical Institutes Students' Executive Council). Il a suivi des cours d'été à l'Université du Québec à Chicoutimi et voyagé en France, ce qui a démontré son intérêt pour la culture et amélioré sa maîtrise de la langue française. Robert est actuellement inscrit au programme de maîtrise en sciences sociales en relations internationales à l'Université de Wales à Aberystwyth. Ses intérêts de carrière portent notamment sur le service extérieur, le droit et le monde universitaire. (M. Nichols a dû quitter le programme en mars pour des raisons de santé.)

Jackie Steele

Jackie est native de Delta, en Colombie-Britannique, et a obtenu un diplôme de l'Université McGill avec une spécialisation double en science politique et en études de l'Asie de l'Est. Elle s'est spécialisée en politique canadienne et en culture et langue japonaises, et elle a travaillé pendant trois ans à titre de coordonnatrice des relations internationales à la préfecture de Nagano, au Japon. Au cours de ces années, elle a eu l'occasion d'offrir des services de traduction trilingue au siège social du Comité organisateur des Olympiques. De plus, Jackie fut choisie pour animer les Conférences Jeunesse tenues lors de la visite du premier ministre au Japon en 1999 et présenter les conclusions des résultats aux premiers ministres qui accompagnaient l'Équipe Canada. Parmi ses loisirs et intérêts, l'on retrouve la musique, les sports et le plein air. Son souvenir le plus précieux de Nagano est son chat japonais appelé Shinshu.

Jonathan Weier

Jonathan est né à Winnipeg où il a vécu une grande partie de sa vie. L'une de ses expériences formatrices les plus pertinentes, cependant, a été les voyages. Il a fait sa onzième année en 1994-1995 dans une école internationale en Inde. Il a également vécu une expérience très formatrice au Centre de politique internationale de Washington tout un été. Cette expérience a stimulé l'intérêt croissant qu'il avait connu en travaillant dans le secteur non-gouvernemental. Cette expérience l'a aussi mené toute l'année en cours à rédiger un article sur les mines terrestres grâce à une bourse du ministère des Affaires étrangères. Finalement, l'été dernier, Jonathan a eu l'occasion de participer à une école d'été sous les auspices de l'Union Européenne et de l'OTAN, afin d'y étudier les relations Europe-Amérique et les politiques de l'intégration européenne. Il a récemment obtenu un baccalauréat en histoire et en science politique de l'Université de Winnipeg et est intéressé à travailler dans le secteur non-gouvernemental, plus précisément au sein d'organismes internationaux extra-gouvernementaux, à la suite d'études supérieures.

Commanditaires et amis

L'aide financière des commanditaires s'est avérée très stable tout au cours de l'année. Le comité de levées de fonds a multiplié ses efforts en vue d'attirer deux ou trois commanditaires supplémentaires.

Les commanditaires pour l'année 2000-2001 sont les suivants:

Niveau I

- Bank of Montreal / Banque de Montréal
- Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council of Canada / Conseil de recherches en sciences humaines du Canada

Niveau II

- Canadian Cable Television Association / Association canadienne de télévision par câble
- Canadian Life and Health Insurance Association / Association canadienne des compagnies d'assurances de personnes
- Insurance Bureau of Canada / Bureau d'assurance du Canada
- The Co-operators / Les Co-operators

Niveau III

- Bell Canada
- Brewers Association of Canada / Association des brasseurs du Canada
- Canadian Bankers' Association / Association des banquiers canadiens
- Canadian Real Estate Association / Association canadienne de l'immeuble
- Dow Chemical Canada
- GlaxoSmithKline
- Nortel Networks
- Toronto Dominion Bank / Banque Toronto Dominion
- Union Gas Ltd.
- Via Rail Canada Inc.

En plus des commanditaires financiers réguliers, nous avons reçu cette année une aide financière additionnelle des organisations suivantes: le Haut-Commissariat du Royaume-Uni au Canada, l'ambassade des États-Unis, le ministère des Affaires étrangères et du Commerce international, le ministère des Affaires indiennes et du Nord canadien, la Commission européenne, l'Institut sur la gouvernance et First Air.

Programme d'étude

Le programme vise principalement à permettre aux stagiaires d'observer directement des pratiques parlementaires canadiennes en travaillant avec les députés du gouvernement et de l'opposition. Le programme d'étude vient appuyer cette expérience.

Les élections d'octobre 2000 ont perturbé les affectations auprès des députés et du programme d'étude. Les stagiaires n'ont pas pu, de façon pratique, poursuivre leur collaboration auprès des députés. Des affectations dans les ministères du gouvernement, les groupes de réflexion et à la bibliothèque du Parlement ont alors été rendues possible. Les premières affectations auprès des députés n'ont duré que plusieurs semaines; toutefois, tous les stagiaires ont grandement profité des autres affectations. Les deuxièmes affectations ont débuté en février 2001 et se sont poursuivies normalement. Le programme d'étude 2000-2001 comprenait:

- une séance d'orientation de deux semaines au début de septembre accompagnée d'une variété de conférences sur divers aspects du système parlementaire canadien;
- des séminaires hebdomadaires animés par le directeur et axés sur un choix de lectures sur le Parlement canadien et les législatures comparées (celles-ci furent interrompues à l'automne à cause des élections);

- des séminaires tout au long de l'année organisés par les stagiaires eux-mêmes, accompagnés de conférenciers invités spéciaux;
- des voyages d'étude (y compris des séances d'information préparatoires aux voyages) dans les législatures de l'Ontario (en novembre), du Nunavut (en février) et du Québec (en avril);
- des voyages d'étude (y compris des séances d'information spéciales préparatoires aux voyages) dans les législatures du Royaume-Uni, de Belfast, de l'Union européenne (parrainées par le gouvernement du Royaume-Uni et de la Commission européenne) en janvier;
- des voyages d'étude (y compris, des séances d'information spéciales préparatoires aux voyages) au Congrès américain (en mai);
- une recherche sur un certain aspect du système parlementaire canadien.

Structure de direction

Les principaux comités et leurs membres sont les suivants :

Comité de direction

Comité de levée de fonds

Andrew Casey (ACCAP), Leslie A. Pal (directeur du PSP), Nick Masciantonio (ACTC), Hugh Scott (BAC), Peggy Morgan (ABC), Carol Anne Murphy (CRSH) et Howard Collins (Association des brasseurs).

Comité de sélection

Leslie A. Pal, Audrey O'Brien, David Dymont, Miriam Smith, Yves-Yvon Pelletier.

Autres initiatives

En septembre 2000, Yves-Yvon Pelletier a reçu le deuxième prix annuel de recherche Hales. Ce prix a été créé en 1999 en hommage à Alf Hales, député du gouvernement fédéral qui, il y a 30 ans, a grandement contribué à la création du programme. Le prix annuel d'une valeur de 500 $ est attribué par l'Institut sur la gouvernance et est décerné au ou à la stagiaire qui a effectué le meilleur travail de recherche sur le régime parlementaire. Le document de M. Pelletier touchait entre autres l'utilisation de l'attribution du temps à la Chambre des communes. Le comité des prix se composait de James Hurley (conseiller spécial, Bureau du Conseil privé), John Graham (Institut sur la gouvernance et président du comité), David Dyment (associé de recherche, Université d'Ottawa) et le directeur (sans droit de vote). L'Institut a publié le document de M. Pelletier et la Revue parlementaire canadienne en a également publié une version.

Nous avons organisé une réception pour les commanditaires au début de septembre (avec le concours de l'Association canadienne de science politique) afin de leur faciliter une rencontre avec les nouveaux stagiaires.

Le Conseil de recherches en sciences humaines a tenu un événement spécial dans le but d'honorer les stagiaires et de souligner son appui aux éléments universitaires du programme. Le 20 mars 2001, un dîner-conférence a eu lieu sur le rôle du député au Parlement. Le conférencier, David Docherty, a répondu aux questions et participé aux discussions. Le dîner a été servi dans la salle à manger du président de la Chambre des communes qui a gentiment participé à l'événement.

L'Association canadienne des compagnies d'assurances de personnes inc. a tenu un déjeuner au printemps et pour sa part, le Bureau d'assurance du Canada a organisé un déjeuner-discours d'adieux en juin.

Une Association des anciens stagiaires a été lancée en juin 1999. Elle a fourni un solide appui au programme et aux nouveaux stagiaires. L'Association organise un second gala annuel qui aura lieu en juin 2001.

Les stagiaires ont réussi à trouver de l'aide financière pour la mise sur pied d'un voyage d'étude au Nunavut (MAINC, First Air et le Collège de l'Arctique). Le voyage a connu un vif succès et il est souhaitable qu'il fasse partie du programme à l'avenir.

It is a pleasure to submit my third annual report on the Canadian Parliamentary Internship Programme.

The current Speaker of the House of Commons, the Hon. Peter Milliken, and his predecessor, the Hon. Gilbert Parent, have both been strong friends of the programme, and have both agreed to serve as patrons of the Programme's Alumni Association.

I would like to thank Mr. William Corbett, the Clerk of the House of Commons, for his support of the programme. He has kindly provided the services of one of his staff, Ms. JoAnne Cartwright, to act as the programme's administrator. Ms. Audrey O'Brien, the Deputy Clerk, has also contributed generously of her time and counsel to the programme.

The Association has also been of great help in innumerable ways, and in particular I would like to thank Ms. Michelle Hopkins for her administrative support.

The programme has continued to enjoy the strong support of its sponsors and many friends. It is this support that both makes the programme possible in the first place, but also contributes to its dynamism and its value to the interns.

Interns

As of the end of January 2001, the programme had received less than 60 applications. This was the fourth consecutive year in which applications dropped, and I was concerned about such a small pool from which to draw next year's interns. Accordingly, I decided to extend the application period by one month, and with the help of Michelle Hopkins, launched a special appeal to colleagues to bring the programme to the attention to their students.

The response was overwhelming. We received some 250 applications by February 28. This is the highest level for some years, and suggests that a more direct approach through the network of our colleagues might be the best approach to reach prospective applicants.

The 2000-2001 Interns are:

Maya Bevan

Maya Bevan was born in Kingston Ontario but most of her years were spent in Thunder Bay. She moved to London for her post-secondary education and completed a Master of Arts in Comparative Literature. Her thesis was entitled Non-Fiction Eutopias: Contradiction, Complexity, Consilience, which focused on the question of reconciliation in a variety of disciplines, from literature to mathematics. She also published an article entitled "Realistic Idealism: The Future of the United Nations" in Arachne, an interdisciplinary academic journal. Maya studied language, literature, and culture at Moscow State University, and her other interests include voice, Tae Kwon Do, and figure skating.

Jennifer Chandler

Jennifer Chandler grew up in Montreal, Quebec and has dual citizenship with the United States. She holds a Bachelor of Arts in Political Science, with Great Distinction from McGill University. She spent a summer in Florence, Italy, becoming fluent in Italian, and has travelled extensively throughout Europe. Jennifer spent last year developing an ad campaign and directing national sales efforts as a Marketing Co-ordinator for an expanding firm in Montreal. Very active in McGill's United Nations' Student Association, she has also worked as a reporter for several Montreal newspapers. Her community involvement has focussed on education, and she has been a volunteer assistant teacher and a coach at her former high school, where she taught the extra-curricular debating programme for 6 years.

Caitlin Hayward

Caitlin Hayward just completed her Bachelor of Arts at Mount Allison University with a First Class Honours in Political Science and a Major in History. She participated extensively in student government, spending her fourth year as vice-president (University Affairs) for the Students' Administrative Council, as well as two years as a section editor on the Mount Allison student journal, the Argosy. Born in Toronto, she attended l'École Publique Gabrielle Roy, and North Toronto Collegiate Institute before travelling to New Brunswick to attend Mount Allison. Having never travelled much beyond the North American continent, she looks forward to travelling during her internship, as well as afterwards. Her particular interests lie in modern constitutional history and political theory.

Carolyn Helgeland West

Originally from Calgary, Alberta, Carolyn recently completed her BA (Honours) in Political Science at the University of Alberta, Edmonton. The recipient of numerous scholarships, including a Chancellor's Citation Scholarship and an Alison White Faculty of Arts Honours Prize, Carolyn balanced her academic work with various extra-curricular activities: for example, she was an active member of the Edmonton Youth Orchestra, and volunteered with the Services for Students with Disabilities Centre on campus. Carolyn has also held several positions on Parliament Hill, including that of Parliamentary Page and tour guide. Before returning once again to the nation's capital as an intern, she spent three months in France working as a guide at the Canadian National Vimy Memorial. Carolyn hopes that one day she may put her knowledge and experience to use in the service of her country, perhaps as a specialist in international trade law.

Carrolyn Johnston

Carrolyn was born and raised in the Ottawa area and graduated from the University of Ottawa with an Honours degree in Political Science. During her first year of university she served as a Parliamentary Page, an experience that piqued a great interest in Canada's parliamentary process and Canadian politics in general. Upon graduation from university she moved to Osaka, Japan where she worked as an English teacher for an academic year. Carrolyn has spent the past three years working in the telecommunications industry in the areas of government affairs and sales. She has become quite active in women's issues including the organization of Ottawa's Take Back the Night March for the past two years and is currently a crisis line counsellor for the Ottawa Rape Crisis Centre. Carrolyn will be returning to school next fall to pursue a Masters degree in Social Work at the University of Toronto.

Nathalie Labonté

Nathalie is from the Saguenay Lac-St-Jean région of Québec. She holds a Bachelor in music with a major in flute from the Music Conservatory of Québec in Chicoutimi. She is currently finishing a Bachelor in Social Sciences with an honours in Anthropology and Human Rights at Carleton University. Last year, Nathalie studied in Japan at Kansai Gaidai University. There she studied the Japanese language and culture, as well as major religious ideologies in Asia, the Sino-Japanese political relations and the recent Asian economical crisis. During the summer 2000, Nathalie received a scholarship from UNESCO through a non governmental organization entitled "PEACEBOAT". This scholarship allowed her to travel in 17 countries around Europe, Africa, Asia and North America by boat, where lectures were organized concerning culture, economy and political situations of the visited countries. In terms of employment, she played flute in the Ceremonial Guard for 5 consecutive years and was a Page in the House of Commons. Future projects include Master studies in international politics and work in international development.

Alice MacLachlan

Alice was born in Halifax, Nova Scotia. She was raised there and in Kingston, Ontario and lived in London, UK. for one year on a family sabbatical. Extensive travel in Europe and South East Asia gave her a taste for all things international, and she participated in debating and youth conferences before attending Pearson College, a United World College. Alice completed her B.A. in Philosophy at Cambridge University in England.

Robert Nichols

Robert is from Alberta. He holds a Bachelor of Arts in Political Studies from Augustana University College, where he graduated with Great Distinction and won the Governor General's Medal for highest graduating G.P.A. It is also through this university that he became involved in student government, serving for two years as vice-president of the Students' Union and executive member of the student lobby organization ACTISEC (Alberta Colleges and Technical Institutes Students' Executive Council). Summer school at the Université du Québec à Chicoutimi and travel in France can be credited for his interest and fluency in French. Robert is currently enrolled in a Masters of Social Sciences programme in International Relations at the University of Wales at Aberystwyth. His career interests include the foreign service, law, and academia. [Mr. Nichols had to leave the Programme in March for health reasons.]

Jackie Steele

A Delta, BC, native, Jackie Steele graduated from McGill University with a Joint Honours in Political Science and East Asian Studies. Specializing in Canadian politics and Japanese language/culture, Jackie went on to work for three years as a Coordinator for International Relations in Nagano Prefecture, Japan. During that time, she had the opportunity of providing trilingual translation support for the Olympic Organizing Committee Head Office. In addition, Jackie was selected to moderate the Youth Forums held during the Prime Minister's visit to Japan in 1999, and to present the resulting conclusions to the First Ministers accompanying Team Canada. Jackie's hobbies include music, sports, and enjoying the outdoors. Her most treasured souvenir from Nagano is her Japanese cat named Shinshu.

Jonathan Weier

Jonathan was born in Winnipeg and has lived there for much of his life. Some of his most formative experiences however, have been when he had the opportunities to travel. He spent the 1994-95 school year taking his grade eleven at an international school in India. He also spent a particularly formative summer interning at the Center for International Policy in Washington. This experience sort of led to an increasing interest he has had in working in the non-governmental sector. Similarly this experience led to work over the last year writing a paper on land-mines under a grant from the Department of Foreign Affairs. Finally, this past summer, he had the opportunity to participate in a summer school, under the auspices of the European Union and NATO, studying European-American relations and the politics of European integration. He recently graduated with a Bachelor's degree in History and Political Science from the University of Winnipeg and is interested, likely following graduate work, to work in the non-governmental sector, hopefully for extra-governmental international organizations.

Sponsors and Friends

Financial support by sponsors was stable over the past year. Efforts continue through the Fundraising Committee to attract two or three additional sponsors. Sponsors for 2000-2001 were:

Level I

- Bank of Montreal / Banque de Montréal
- Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council of Canada / Conseil de recherches en sciences humaines du Canada

Level II

- Canadian Cable Television Association / Association canadienne de télévision par câble
- Canadian Life and Health Insurance Association / Association canadienne des compagnies d'assurances de personnes
- Insurance Bureau of Canada / Bureau d'assurance du Canada
- The Co-operators / Les Co-operators

Level III

- Bell Canada
- Brewers Association of Canada / Association des brasseurs du Canada
- Canadian Bankers' Association / Association des banquiers canadiens
- Canadian Real Estate Association / Association canadienne de l'immeuble
- Dow Chemical Canada
- GlaxoSmithKline
- Nortel Networks
- Toronto Dominion Bank / Banque Toronto Dominion
- Union Gas Ltd.
- Via Rail Canada Inc.

In addition to our regular financial sponsors, this year we received additional financial support from the following organizations: the United Kingdom High Commission to Canada, the Embassy of the United States, the Department of Foreign Affairs and International Trade, the Department of Indian Affairs and Northern Development, the European Commission, the Institute on Governance, and First Air.

Study Programme

The main purpose of the programme is to permit the Interns to observe Canadian parliamentary practice first hand through working with government and opposition MPs. The Study Programme supplements this experience.

Both the placements with MPs and the Study Programme were affected by the election call in October 2000. Logistically, it was not possible for the interns to continue working with their MPs once the election was underway, and so alternative placements were found with government departments, a think tank, and the Library of Parliament. The first allocation with MPs only lasted several weeks, but all the interns enjoyed their alternate placements very much. The second allocation started in February 2001 and proceeded normally. The 2000-01 Study Programme consisted of:

- a two-week orientation session in early September with a wide variety of speakers that introduced various aspects of the Canadian parliamentary system to them
- weekly seminars with the Director to discuss a specially selected set of readings dealing with the Canadian parliament and comparative legislatures (these were truncated in the fall because of the election)
- seminars throughout the year, organized by the Interns themselves, with special guest speakers
- study tour (including special pre-tour briefings) of the legislatures of Ontario (November), Nunavut (February), Quebec (April)
- study tour (including special pre-tour briefings) of the legislatures of the United Kingdom, Belfast, and the European Union (sponsored by the UK government and the European Commission; January)
- study tour (including special pre-tour briefings) of the American Congress (May)
- a research paper on some aspect of the Canadian parliamentary system

Governance

The key committees and their members are:

Governance Committee

Prof. François Rocher (Chair), Leslie A. Pal (PIP Director), the Whips of the five official federal parties, Luc Juillet (Alumni Representative), Audrey O'Brien (Deputy Clerk), Marc Renaud (SSHRC), Nick Masciantonio (CCTA), Andrew Casey (CLHIA), Peggy Morgan (CBA).

Fundraising Committee

Other Initiatives

The second annual Hales Research Award was granted to Yves-Yvon Pelletier in September 2000. The Hales Award was established in 1999 to honour Alf Hales, the federal MP whose efforts led to the creation of the Programme 30 years ago. The $500 annual award is donated by the Institute on Governance, and goes to the best Intern's paper on parliamentary governance. Mr. Pelletier's paper was on the use of time allocation in the House of Commons. The Awards Committee comprised James Hurley (Special Advisor, Privy Council Office), John Graham (Institute on Governance, and Chair of the Committee), David Dymont (Research Associate, University of Ottawa), and the Director (non-voting). Mr. Pelletier's paper was published by the Institute, and a version was also published in Canadian Parliamentary Review.

We have instituted a Sponsors Reception in early September (hosted by the Canadian Political Science Association) to give sponsors an early opportunity to meet the new Interns.

The Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council hosted a special event to honour the Interns and underscore its support for the academic components of the Programme. A dinner/colloquium was held on March 20, 2001 on the theme of the role of MPs in Parliament. Dr. David Docherty was the speaker, and fielded questions and discussion afterwards. The dinner was held in the Speaker's dining room, and he graciously attended as well.

The Canadian Life and Health Insurance Association hosted a spring luncheon, and the Insurance Bureau of Canada hosted a valedictory luncheon in June.

An Alumni Association was launched in June 1999, and has provided strong support for the Programme and the new Interns. The Association is organizing a second annual gala for June 2001.

The interns successfully found financial support for a study trip to Nunavut (DIAND, First Air, and Arctic College). The trip was a great success, and if possible should be made a feature of the programme in the future.

Annual Report / Rapport annuel 2000

We are pleased to submit our second annual report on our work as editors of the Canadian Journal of Political Science. Once again, we thank John McMenemy, the Journal's Administrative Editor, for continuing to provide administrative support and sage advice to the editorial team. We are very pleased that the CPSA Board has decided to create the annual John McMenemy Prize for the best paper in a volume year of the Journal, in recognition of John's long-term commitment to steering the Journal through the various stages of the publication process. The first recipient of this Prize will be chosen from Volume XXXIII. This is a fitting tribute to the contribution that John has made, and continues to make, to maintaining the high quality of the Journal. We also thank Sue DeAngelis for her work as administrative assistant, Penelope Lister for continuing to serve as the English-language copy editor, and the several students who have worked in various capacities throughout the year. The editors are very grateful as well to the reviewers. Without your assistance, we would be unable to carry out our mandate.

This second year was another busy one for this editorial team. There were 64 new submissions in English. As in the first year of its mandate, the English-language team has been committed to sending most of these submission for peer review. In 2000, only 4 manuscripts were rejected without peer review, but after consultation with members of the Editorial Advisory Board. Of the 60 new manuscripts that were sent for peer review, 1 was withdrawn by the author, 11 were accepted for publication, 19 were returned to the authors for revisions and resubmission, 27 were rejected following peer review, and 2 decisions are pending. Subsequently, 10 of the 19 manuscripts designated as revise and resubmit have been resubmitted, and 5 of the 10 have been accepted for publication at this time. Decisions are pending for the remaining 5 resubmitted manuscripts. In addition, 23 manuscripts were resubmitted from previous years, and 18 of these were accepted for publication. In total, the English-language editorial team sent 92 manuscripts (either new or revised) for review in 2000.

In spite of our efforts to improve our procedures, we were not able to reduce the average review time. In part, this is a function of work load. But it is due as well to the ongoing difficulty that we have had in convincing colleagues to carry out reviews, and to complete these reviews within the requested three weeks. In some cases, reviewers have taken as long as six months, even after repeated reminders. In other cases, the reviews have not been carried out, in spite of the assessor's initial commitment to do so. In 2000 the English-language editorial team contacted 222 people, to request reviews of new manuscripts, in addition to contacting reviewers of revised manuscripts for a second review. Of the 222 people, 121 (or 54.5%) agreed to carry out reviews. We continue to look for ways to improve this percentage, and to reduce the average review time.

In 2000, we were not yet able to increase the number of articles in print, in spite of the decision made in 1999 to reduce manuscript length from 35 to 30 pages. In 1999, 22 English and 4 French manuscripts were published. In 2000, 15 articles, 1 field analysis, 1 research note, and 4 comments were published in English, and 4 articles were published in French. We anticipate that the reduction in manuscript length will result in the publication of more articles in 2001. We were very pleased to include more comments, and one field analysis in the list of publications. As we enter the last year of our mandate, we are considering again the possibility of devoting one issue to a particular theme, and welcome comments on this proposal. We will be discussing this possibility at the May meeting of the Journal's Editorial Advisory Board.

The French-language editor has received 20 manuscripts, a number that is equal to the number reported in 1999. However, the number of manuscripts rejected without peer review was higher in 2000 than in 1999; i.e., 6 instead of 2, or 30%. In most cases, the manuscripts rejected without peer review were submitted by doctoral students. Either the quality of the work was lower than the Journal standard, or the subject matter was outside the range of political science. Six manuscripts were rejected following peer review, 4 were sent back for revisions and resubmission, and 1 was withdrawn by the author. Three manuscripts were accepted for publication, versus 5 in 1999, or 15% of the total number of manuscripts submitted. The editor is aware that this is a low acceptance rate. The cause is easy to identify. The manuscripts were submitted for the most part by students rather than research professors. In addition, the submitted manuscripts generally were of a lower quality than was the case last year. Finally, the problem noted in the 1999 report; i.e., that the subjects dealt with are often outside the scope of political science – themes related to communication, the protection of the environment, linguistics, or urban architecture – was even greater this year. The manuscripts in this category are more often rejected than those dealing with the subject matter of political science. There may be two explanations for this phenomenon. First, the quality of the manuscripts is often weak, suggesting that the authors have selected the Journal after their manuscript was rejected by a specialized journal in their discipline. Secondly, given that the editor has more difficulty identifying specialists in other disciplines, it may be that the assessors that were selected were not always the best for judging the merits and the weaknesses of the manuscripts in question.

The increase in the number of manuscripts from people working in other disciplines than political science explains not only the decrease in the number of accepted manuscripts, but also the lower percentage of assessors agreeing to carry out the review. For French-language manuscripts, this percentage fell from 84% in 1999 to 70% in 2000. This phenomenon is also responsible for the increase in the average length of time for assessment, for the selection of assessors outside the discipline was more difficult, and took longer. I hope that in the future, more political scientists will submit French-language manuscripts to the Journal. The comparison of submissions in 1999 and 2000 shows that specialists in several areas of the discipline – international relations, public law, political economy – unfortunately continue to ignore the Journal as an avenue for publication of their work. The numbers in Table 5 indicate a decrease in the number of female assessors. This is not due to a decrease in the number of requests to women, but rather to the fact that many women were unable to carry out assessments, because they were on sabbatical or research leave in 2000.

In the tables that follow, we provide more detailed information about the manuscripts submitted and the books reviewed in 2000.

Les éditeurs de la Revue sont heureux de vous soumettre leur second rapport annuel. Cette fois encore l'équipe éditoriale tient à remercier John McMenemy, le directeur administratif de la Revue, pour son soutien constant et ses sages conseils.

Nous sommes reconnaissants au Conseil d'administration de la CPSA/ACSP d'avoir créé le prix John McMenemy en hommage à John qui depuis plusieurs années assume la direction des différentes étapes du processus de production de la revue. Ce prix sera attribué au meilleur article de chaque volume annuel de la Revue. Le premier récipiendaire de ce prix sera choisi parmi les auteurs des articles publiés dans le volume XXXIII. Il constituera un premier tribut aux efforts que John a consentis et continue de consentir en vue de l'amélioration continue du niveau d'excellence de la Revue. Nous remercions également Sue DeAngelis pour son travail d'administratrice-adjointe, Penelope Lister, pour sa contribution à l'édition des manuscrits anglais et les nombreux étudiants qui ont travaillé à différentes tâches au cours de l'année. Les éditeurs sont également très reconnaissants aux évaluateurs sans la collaboration desquels il leur aurait été impossible d'accomplir leur mandat.

Cette seconde année a été aussi occupée que la précédente pour les éditeurs. L'équipe éditoriale anglophone a reçu 64 manuscrits et a soumis la majorité d'entre eux à l'évaluation par les pairs, comme elle l'avait fait en 1999. Quatre manuscrits ont été rejetés sans évaluation, après consultation des membres du Conseil consultatif. Des 60 manuscrits envoyés en évaluation, 1 a été retiré par l'auteur, 11 ont été acceptés pour publication, 19 ont été retournés aux auteurs pour révisions et resoumission, 27 ont été rejetés suite à l'évaluation par les pairs et 2 décisions n'ont pas encore été rendues. 10 des 19 manuscrits retournés aux auteurs pour corrections ont été resoumis et acceptés pour publication jusqu'à maintenant. L'évaluation des 5 autres manuscrits soumis pour une seconde fois est en cours. En outre, 23 manuscrits des années précédentes jugés éligibles à une seconde évaluation ont été resoumis; 18 d'entre eux ont été acceptés pour publication. Au total, durant l'année 2000, l'équipe éditoriale anglophone a fait évalué 92 manuscrits soumis pour la première ou la deuxième fois à la Revue.

Malgré nos efforts, il nous a été impossible de réduire la durée moyenne de la procédure d'évaluation. Ceci est dû en partie à la lourdeur de notre tâche de travail. Mais cela tient aussi au fait qu'il est toujours aussi difficile de convaincre les collègues d'évaluer un manuscrit et de le faire dans un délai de trois semaines. Dans certains cas, les évaluateurs ont attendu jusqu'à six mois avant de nous envoyer leur rapport, en dépit de rappels répétés. Dans d'autres cas, les évaluateurs ne nous ont jamais fait parvenir leurs rapports bien qu'ils aient accepté d'assumer cette tâche. En 2000, l'équipe éditoriale a contacté 222 personnes pour leur demander d'évaluer de nouveaux manuscrits, en plus des personnes sollicitées pour l'évaluation d'une deuxième version d'un manuscrit. De ces 122 personnes, 121 (or 54.5%) ont effectué l'évaluation demandée. Nous continuons à nous demander quelles méthodes pourraient améliorer le pourcentage d'acceptation des évaluations et le respect des échéances fixées.

En 2000, nous n'avons pas été en mesure d'accroître le nombre des articles publiés dans chaque numéro, malgré la nouvelle politique de réduction de la longueur des manuscrits de 35 à 30 pages. En 1999, 22 manuscrits anglais et 4 manuscrits français avaient été publiés. En 2000, 15 articles, 1 revue de la littérature, 1 note de recherche et 4 commentaires ont été publiés en anglais et 4 articles ont été publiés en français. Nous prévoyons que la réduction de la longueur des manuscrits permettra la publication d'un plus grand nombre d'articles en 2001. Nous avons été très heureux de pouvoir inclure plus de commentaires et une revue de littérature dans la liste des publications. Alors que nous amorçons la dernière année de nos mandats, nous envisageons toujours la possibilité de consacrer un numéro à un thème particulier et attendons vos suggestions à cet effet. Ce projet sera discuté lors de la réunion du Conseil consultatif du Comité de rédaction en mai.

L'éditrice francophone, pour sa part, a reçu 20 manuscrits, un nombre équivalent à celui de l'année dernière. Cependant le nombre des manuscrits rejetés sans évaluation a été plus élevé qu'en 1999: 6 au lieu de 2, ce qui équivaut à 30%. Dans la majorité des cas, les manuscrits rejetés avaient été soumis par des étudiants de doctorat. Ou la qualité des textes ne répondait pas aux normes de la revue et/ou le sujet traité était complètement étranger aux problématiques de la science politique. 6 manuscrits ont été rejetés après évaluation, 4 ont été renvoyés aux auteurs pour corrections et resoumission et 1 a été retiré en cours d'évaluation par l'auteur. 3 manuscrits ont été acceptés pour publication, contre 5 en 1999, ce qui équivaut à 15% du total des manuscrits soumis. L'éditrice est consciente qu'il s'agit là d'un faible taux d'acceptation. Les causes de cette situation sont toutefois assez faciles à identifier. D'une part, les manuscrits provenaient majoritairement d'étudiants au doctorat plutôt que de professeurs chercheurs. D'autre part, les manuscrits soumis, tant par les étudiants que les professeurs – chercheurs étaient de qualité inférieure à celle des manuscrits de l'année dernière. Enfin, le problème signalé dans le rapport 1999 à l'effet que les sujets traités sont souvent assez ou très éloignés de la science politique (thématiques reliées aux communications, à la protection de l'environnement, à la linguistique, à l'architecture urbaine) s'est accentué cette année. Or les textes de cette catégorie sont plus souvent rejetés que ceux qui traitent d'une problématique de la science politique. Deux raisons semblent pouvoir expliquer ce phénomène. Premièrement, la qualité de ces textes est souvent faible, les auteurs ayant peut-être choisi de les soumettre à notre Revue après avoir subi un refus de la part d'une revue spécialisée de leur discipline. Deuxièmement, étant donné que l'éditrice n'a pas une connaissance approfondie des spécialistes des autres disciplines, il se peut que les évaluateurs sollicités ne soient pas toujours les mieux habilités à juger des mérites et des lacunes du manuscrit reçu.

L'augmentation du nombre de manuscrits provenant de d'autres disciplines que la science politique explique non seulement la baisse du taux d'acceptation des manuscrits, mais la baisse du pourcentage des évaluateurs sollicités qui ont accepté de faire l'évaluation demandée. Ce dernier est passé de 84% en 1999 à 70% en 2000. Elle est également responsable de l'allongement de la durée moyenne de la procédure d'évaluation, le choix d'évaluateurs à l'extérieur de la science politique étant plus long et difficile. En définitive, il serait souhaitable que les politologues soumettent davantage de textes en français à la Revue. La comparaison des données 1999 et 2000 du tableau 2 démontrent que les spécialistes de plusieurs champs de la discipline – relations internationales, droit public, économie politique – continuent malheureusement d'ignorer la Revue comme médium éventuel de publication. Signalons par ailleurs que les chiffres du tableau 5 dénotent une baisse du nombre de femmes parmi les évaluateurs. Ceci est dû, non pas à une moins grande sollicitation des femmes mais au fait que plusieurs d'entre elles ont refusé d'accepter cette tâche – étant en congé sabbatique ou en dégrèvement pour recherche en 2000.

Les tableaux annexés fournissent des informations plus détaillées sur les manuscrits soumis et les recensions de l'année 2000.

Responsibilities:

- (1) pursue a personal programme of research and publications in the area of foreign policy and/or security
- (2) coordinate the research of students involved in the CEPES's team research project, funded by the FCAR, on the relationship between national identity and the evolution of the Transatlantic subsystem, 1980-2000
- (3) participate in the Centre's intellectual activities

Qualifications: having recently obtained a doctorate in international relations in a university other than the Université du Québec à Montréal, good knowledge of IR theory, good reading ability and understanding of French and English

Financial conditions: $35 000 per year

Starting date: September 1st 2001 or January 1st 2002

Send a letter announcing your candidacy, including a copy of your cv and the names of three referees, either by post to Le directeur, Centre d'études des politiques étrangères et de sécurité, Département de science politique, Université du Québec à Montréal, CP 8888, succursale Centre-ville, Montréal, Québec, H3C 3P8, or by email to cepes@er.uqam.ca, with the mention «post-doctoral scholarship», by June 15 2001 at the latest

Around the Departments / Les nouvelles des départements

Acadia University

We are pleased to announce that Antonio Franceschet will be joining the Department of Political Science effective July 1st 2001. Dr Franceschet will be teaching International Relations and Human Rights.

Brock University

The Department of Political Science was visited last winter by two Appraisals Consultants acting on behalf of the Ontario Council of Graduate Studies. Their report, presented in March, praised the M.A. program at Brock, the accomplishments of the faculty in teaching and research, and the quality of the graduate students.

At the suggestion of President David Atkinson, the department has agreed to consider the possibility of establishing a Ph.D. program some time in the future. A committee consisting of Garth Stevenson, William Mathie, and Pierre Lizée has been established to explore the feasibility of such a project.

Carl Baar spent three weeks in Pakistan as a court delay consultant on a judicial reform project funded by the Asian Development Bank. He reports that there is enough court delay there to keep him busy for some time.

Nick Baxter-Moore was cited as one of Brock's most popular professors in the annual survey of Canadian universities by Maclean's Magazine. His course on Politics and Popular Music has the largest enrolment of any second-year course in the department.

Jim Kelly received a SSHRC grant of $49,475 to study the impact of Charter review on provincial Departments of the Attorney General.

Dan Madar's book Heavy Traffic: Deregulation, Trade and Transformation in North American Trucking, published recently by UBC Press, has been shortlisted for the Donner Prize.

Garth Stevenson participated in a colloquium entitled "Québec: État et Société" at McGill University in April. His paper entitled "English-speaking Quebec: A Political History" will be published in the forthcoming third edition of Alain G. Gagnon (ed.) Quebec: State and Society.

Carleton University

The Department of Political Science has hired several new faculty members during the last three years, including Fiona Robinson previously appointed to the University of Sussex, specializing in international relations; William Walters, from Goldsmiths College, University of London, specializing in European politics; Rebecca Kukla, from the University of Pittsburgh, specializing in political philosophy (cross appointed with the Department of Philosophy); Jonathan Malloy, specializing in Canadian politics and public administration; and Edward Osei-Kwadwo, specializing in international relations and human rights. In July 2001, our faculty complement will be joined by Farhang Rajaei previously appointed to the Beheshti (National) University, Tehran and a specialist in non-Western political thought.

Recent hires have greatly strengthened our offerings in public affairs and policy analysis, comparative and Canadian politics, international relations, political philosophy and gender and politics. We are pleased to note that our department ranked first among large departments in the percentage of women faculty in the recent CPSA survey of Canadian political science departments. Our department continues to draw sizeable graduate enrolments with 62 MA students and 73 PhD students in 2000-01.

The department has seen the establishment of a number of specialized research centres over the past few years, many of which offer excellent opportunities for our students. The Centre on North American Politics and Society focuses on the political, social and cultural processes defining the North American region and will also be a space for dialogue among actors in the government, academic, and voluntary sectors throughout the continent. The Centre is seeking to promote a network of scholars and policy makers working in the area of North American studies in the three countries by establishing linkages with other university research centres, think-tanks, governmental, inter-governmental, and non governmental actors. The Centre has received preliminary three-year core funding from the Canadian Department of Foreign Affairs and International Trade. We are currently planning, in collaboration with the Center on North American Studies at Duke University, a conference on North American Studies, to be held at Carleton in October 2001. The Centre is part of a North American Mobility Program student exchange between six North American universities (the others are University of Alberta, University of Texas at Dallas, State University of California Northridge, Universidad de Guanajuato and the Instituto Tecnológico de Estudios Superiores in Guadalajara). We also organize a seminar series, and hope to establish student internships in government agencies that deal with trilateral issues. For more information, contact the Centre at:

www.carleton.ca/nac

or Dr. Laura Macdonald, the Director of the Centre, at: Laura_Macdonald@carleton.ca.

The Centre on Representations and Elections, established in the fall of 2000, is directed by Professors Jon Pammett and Jill Vickers. It incorporates faculty and students in the Department of Political Science, as well as other departments and schools at Carleton, who are working in these two interrelated fields. The CRE is non-partisan, and undertakes research, training, public education and the diffusion of knowledge about the role of free, fair and effective elections, representative legislatures and bureaucracies. It also focuses on barriers to effective representation of marginalized groups and the deepening of democracy through alternative models of representation, direct democracy and civil society institutions. The CRE has both Canadian and international specialists, and organizes conferences and symposiums in both areas. Its inaugural event was a symposium on Electoral Reform in Canada, sponsored by Elections Canada, held in late October, 2000. Details on the symposium may be found at the CRE website at www.carleton.ca/cre. Its next event is a conference entitled "Are Elections the Answer to Democracy in Africa?" planned for September, 2001. For further information, contact:

JonPammett@carleton.ca.

In addition to these changes, we have also substantially revamped our graduate requirements and curriculum over the last few years, and have added an internship program for M.A. students. So far, the internship program has been very successful in taking advantage of the opportunities for governmental and NGO jobs that are available in the Ottawa area.

The department continuously updates its web page at www.carleton.ca/polisci.

Russell Isinger was recently awarded $700 from the U of Manitoba's John S. Ewert Memorial fund, and was also awarded $2500 from the Department of National Defence's Security and Defence Forum. The money is to support research trips to Ottawa in support of the book on the Avro Arrow that he and the Chair, Don Story, are writing.

Announcements:

In partnership with the Canadian Study of Parliament Group and the Saskatchewan Institute for Public Policy, the Department will play host to a conference entitled "Independence and Responsibility: Canadian Officers of Parliament" on 2 and 3 November, 2001 at the Delta Bessborough Hotel in Saskatoon. The five Officers of Parliament (Auditor-General, Chief Electoral Officer, Privacy Commissioner, Information Commissioner, and Official Languages Commissioner) have been asked to present papers on their respective offices and responsibilities. Papers will also be presented by academics, provincial officers, former federal officers, and leading public interest group advocates. The conference will be open to faculty and students. For further information contact the Conference Coordinator, Russell Isinger, phone 306-966-5208, fax 306-966-5250, e-mail isingerr@duke.usask.ca.

The Department is a partner in the new Indigenous Peoples and Justice Initiative, approved by University Council in February 2001. The Department's part in the initiative will be an Indigenous Public Administration Program, which we hope to have up and running by the Fall of 2002. The program will be designed to serve both Aboriginal and non-Aboriginal students.

Also, the Saskatchewan Legislative Assembly's Board of Internal Economy approved a proposal from the U of Saskatchewan and U of Regina to establish a new Legislative Internship Program. A total of four third- or fourth-year students from the two universities will spend seven months-January through July-working as assistants to individual Members of the Legislative Assembly, learning about the political process from the inside. The program will start in January 2002.

Visiting Speakers:

This year we welcomed several visiting speakers to the U of S. Jane Jenson, Professor of Political Science, Director of the Université de Montréal/McGill University Institute of European Studies, and Director of The Family Network of Canadian Policy Research Networks since June 1999, was this year's Timlin lecturer (6 February, 2001). She spoke on "Social Citizenship in 21st Century Canada: Challenges and Options." Her lecture will be published and available at no charge from the Department.

In March, Bill Coleman, Professor of Political Science and Director of the Institute on Globalization and the Human Condition at McMaster University, lectured on "Agricultural Biotechnology and International Regime Formation: An Assessment of the Prospects." In the same month, Cris de Clercy gave a seminar titled "Leadership and Uncertainty in Liberal Democracies," and Richard Jenkins (Post-doctoral Fellow, Queen's) presented a talk on "Election Campaigns: The Dynamics of Democratic Decision-Making in Canada." Also, we welcomed an alumnus, Darin Nesbitt (B.A., '89, M.A. '90) who discussed "Retrieving Politics: An Examination of Charles Taylor's Political Thought." Professor Nesbitt teaches at Douglas College, New Westminster, B.C.

Over the course of the fall, we enjoyed seminars given by Jocelyne Praud (U of Regina), "The French Movement for Gender Parity in Public Life." (November 2000); Michael Byers (B.A. '88, U of S, D.Phil. '96, Cambridge), "The Law and Politics of the Pinochet Case" (October 2000); Neils Gerard Röling, Chair of the Group Communications and Innovation Studies Dept., Wageningen Agricultural University in the Netherlands, "The Role of Government, Institutions and Policies in Supporting Sustainable Agriculture and Bolstering Rural Social Capital." (October 2000); and Peter Phillips (BA High Hons, '79), NSERC / SSHRCC Chair & Professor of Agricultural Economics, U of S., "The Administrative and Political Questions Around Biotechnology" (October 2000). As well, the day following the November 2000 federal election, five members of the Department participated in a round table on the election. Students, faculty and several members of the local media were present.

The Department Scene

Brian Howe begins his second year as chair of the department. The department has recently completed a self-evaluation and five year plan, noting major growth in enrolment and the number of majors. Much of the growth has been due to the development of courses in the area of law and public policy. The objective now is to expand further in the area of public administration.

Two centres connected to the Department continue to develop programs of research and community service. One is the Children's Rights Centre, directed by Brian Howe and Katherine Covell, the other is the Atlantic Labour-Management Research and Development Centre, directed by Andrew Molloy.

The department now has a regular Wednesday column in the Cape Breton Post. As part of a community service, members rotate in providing commentaries on topical political and social issues.

Members' Activities:

Brian Howe begins the third year of a SSHRC Standard Research Grant (with Katherine Covell) on children's rights education and its impact on moral development and political socialization. The research will provide the foundation for a new book on children's rights education as means for expanding children's rights and human rights consciousness in Canada.

James Guy is working on a new book with Desmond Morton, focussing on the development of Canada's political institutions. The publication date is 2002.

Lee-Anne Broadhead is in the final stages of writing her new book on environmental politics: The Limits of Green Diplomacy: Rhetoric and Regimes in International Environmental Relations.

Andrew Molloy is involved in a number of research projects including the move to a shorter work week and local government electoral reform. He also is involved in writing a new book entitled The Last Best West Revisited: The Political Economy of Western Canadian Nationalism.

David Johnson will be returning from his sabbatical. He has been involved in research on regional development policy in Northern Ireland and in writing a new text on public administration: Thinking Government: Public Sector Management in Canada (Broadview Press). He also has been involved with the Nova Scotia Human Rights Commission Administrative Review Process.

The University of Western Ontario

Personnel:

Western has made three new appointments in the last year. Bruce Morrison, is a Europeanist with a PhD from Harvard who taught at Swarthmore before returning to Canada in 2000 to take up his tenure-track appointment. In 2001, Paul Kopas (PhD, University of Toronto) joins the department from the University of Saskatchewan to teach provincial and local politics. Both these appointments resulted from the departure of Michael Keating, who now holds positions at both the University of Aberdeen and the European University in Florence.

Another new colleague is Laura Janara, a political theorist (PhD, University of Minnesota), who joined the department in 2000. Her book on de Tocqueville is forthcoming from the State University of New York Press.

Gordon McBean, formerly an assistant deputy minister at Environment Canada in charge of the meteorological service, has been cross-appointed in political science and geography in connection with his new position as Chair of Policy for Catastrophic Loss Reduction. The Chair is part of the Institute for Catastrophic Loss Reduction, which has secured $7.5 million in funding from the Ontario Research and Development Challenge Fund and the Insurance Bureau of Canada.

Erika Simpson and Charles Jones have recently been granted tenure. Their respective recent books are Nato and the Bomb (McGill-Queen's University Press) and Global Justice (Oxford University Press).

Bob Young's four-year term as chair expired in 2000. He has spent his study leave at Queen's. Andy Sancton is the chair until 2005. Andrés Pérez is the new director of the department's Local Government Program.

On sabbatical leave in 2000-01 were Carol Agócs, Verónica Schild, and John Cartwright. During the same year Marie Fleming was the Distinguished Visiting Professor at Clark University in Worcester, Massachusetts. All four return to the department in 2001-02, when Doug Long and Sid Noel will be on sabbatical.

Research Initiatives:

Marta Dyczok (jointly appointed in history) is the author of two books that appeared in 2000: The Grand Alliance and Ukrainian Refugees and Ukraine: Change without Movement, Movement without Change.

While other members continue with their productive personal research agendas, the department has recently played a crucial role in the establishment of two new research institutions. The first is the Nationalism and Ethnic Conflict Research Group (NECRG), co-directed by Sid Noel and Richard Vernon. NCERG is an interdisciplinary unit, based in Western's Department of Political Science, which brings together scholars from various departments and faculties of the university who have expertise and research interests in specific aspects of this increasingly important field. Its aim is to promote the study of cultural, historical and territorial dimensions of ethno-political conflict, issues of national identity, and processes of conflict management and reconciliation. It sponsors visiting scholars, workshops, international symposia and conferences, with participants from many backgrounds, including government and private organizations. The subjects of its most recent conferences have been Minority Nationalism in the Changing State Order, Secession and Stability, Islam and Bosnia and Diasporas and Transnational Identities.

The title of NCERG's next conference, scheduled for October 12-13, 2001, is "Transnational Democracy: Lessons from the Nation-state? For more details contact the conference organizer Bruce Morrison <bmorris2@uwo.ca> or consult the website:

<http://www.ssc.uwo.ca/polysci/necrg/transdemocracy/>

The second new research group is the Economic Policy Research Institute (EPRI), which is operated jointly with the Economics department. Its mandate includes the promotion and facilitation of new research on long term economic policy questions, including policy formation, policy evolution, policy alternatives, and the economic impact of policy and the organization of scholarly conferences and symposia which will bring together participants from both inside and outside Western. Initial funding of $750,000 has been received from the Royal Bank Financial Group Foundation.

The EPRI is currently recruiting a post-doctoral fellow (with training in either political science or economics) whose term is expected to begin on September 1, 2001. For details, contact Andy Sancton at <asancton@uwo.ca>.

The Graduate Program:

Four students received their PhDs from Western in 1999 and 2000. After a year as Assistant director of the Nanovic Institute for European studies at the University of Notre Dame, Emmanuel Brunet-Jailly will take up a tenure-track position at the School of Public Administration at the University of Victoria later this year. Andrew Robinson's thesis was on "Liberalism and Community in a World of Difference: Justifying the Protection of Ethnocultural Minorities within Liberal Democracy; and Robert Jonasson's was on "The Political Uses of Subsidiarity: From Thomas Aquinas to Thomas Courchene." Both Dr. Robinson and Dr. Jonasson are currently teaching at Western. Chris de Clercy is now teaching at the University of Saskatchewan.

Tom Urbaniak, who started his PhD studies in local government in 2000, has recently been awarded a SSHRC doctoral fellowship.

After approximately thirty years of intermittent discussion, the department has recently introduced a non-thesis option for the MA. The new system is being introduced under the imaginative direction of Richard Vernon, the graduate chair.

Undergraduate Program:

Miriam Lapp recently ended a successful two years as undergraduate chair. She has taken over as one of the two instructors of our large section (400-500 students) of the introductory course in political science. Starting in 2001-02, her co-instructor will be Laura Janara, who replaces Doug Long. Another devoted undergraduate teacher and veteran of the first-year course, Martin Westmacott, is the new undergraduate chair.

Wilfrid Laurier University

David Docherty will begin a three-year term as Chair effective July 1. Thomas Hueglin will serve as the Graduate Officer, and Debora VanNijnatten, the Undergraduate Program Coordinator.

Andrea Brown (Ph.D., Toronto) and Dejan Guzina (Ph.D., Carleton) will join the Department in July. Dr. Brown's research is focussed on women's groups and liberalization in Tanzania. Dr. Guzina specializes in research on comparative democratization, East and Central European politics and societies, and nationalism and citizenship in diverse societies.

Brian Tanguay and Robert Campbell (with Therese Arseneau, St. Mary's) have edited a 15-paper volume for the Journal of Canadian Studies. "Reforming Canada's Political Institutions for the Twenty-First Century" is the fourth and concluding issue of the JCS's special millennium volume. The essays confront the question of whether Canada's political institutions have the capacity to deal effectively and authoritatively with the challenges facing Canada in the new millennium. The issue contains essays dealing with citizen inputs, government structures, and new and innovative modes of linking citizens to the state.

The third edition of John McMenemy's The Language of Canadian Politics has just been published. An important reference work for students of Canadian Studies as well as of Canadian government and politics, the new edition contains current information, for example, on the federal election of 2000, the Canadian Alliance and the Social Union Framework Agreement.

The Canadian Political Science Association has instituted the John McMenemy Prize to be awarded to the best article published in an annual volume of the Canadian Journal of Political Science. John McMenemy, a member of the Department since 1970 and author of works on Canadian politics, has served as Administrative Editor of the Journal since 1977.

Debora VanNijnatten has an article forthcoming in Canadian-American Public Policy, entitled "North American Smog Policy: Science-Policy Linkages Across Multiple Boundaries," co-authored with W. Henry Lambright of the Maxwell School, Syracuse University. She also has two co-authored chapters forthcoming (on voluntary pollution prevention initiatives and science-policy linkages) in William Leiss, Risk Issue Management: A New Approach to Risk Controversies (McGill-Queen's, 2001).

Thomas Hueglin published Early Modern Concepts for a Late Modern World with WLU Press in December 1999. Hueglin's current project is a text on Comparative Federalism: A Critical Perspective for Broadview Press, co-authored with Alan Fenna, Curtin University, Western Australia.

The Laurier Institute for the Study of Public Opinion and Policy (LISPOP) is a newly-created research centre at Wilfrid Laurier University to study issues pertaining to the creation, use and representation of public opinion in the policy process. The Institute will serve as a catalyst to promote individual and collaborative research on these issues. In addition, the Institute will monitor the practices and claims of the public opinion and interest group industries, and will serve as an educational resource to the University and the larger community on questions and issues pertaining to those claims and practices. The official launch of the Centre took place on March 23, when it sponsored a one-day symposium to explore issues in public opinion and market research. The symposium involved professionals from many of the major research houses in Canada, as well as academic experts in these fields. Dr. Darrell Bricker of Ipsos-Reid gave the keynote address. More information about LISPOP can be found at www.wlu.ca/lispop.

University of Winnipeg

The most interesting thing we have undertaken is that we have changed our name! We have become the Department of Politics. This represents some recognition of the multiple ways in which the discipline has developed and moves us away from the hegemonic idea of scientism.

In other ways, too, the Department has been in a rebuilding mode. We lost three members suddenly at the beginning of the Fall term, one permanently, and the other two on a temporary but long term basis. In September, Richard Noble resigned for personal reasons; Claudia Wright, the chair, has become the new Dean of Social Science; and Deborah Stienstra was appointed the holder of a chair in the studies of disabilities. The last two will be on extended leaves.

We are, then, in the process of making appointments in Canadian politics, political theory and international relations.

Finally, we hope to consolidate and develop the recently established Chair in United Nations studies, first funded in November 1999. A major part of our efforts will be given over to fund raising because as yet the endowment is not big enough to permit a continuing appointment to be made.

Acadia University

Canada Research Chair in Environmental Policy

Acadia University invites applications for a Tier II Canada Research Chair in environmental policy. Established by the Government of Canada to foster world-class research excellence, candidates for Tier II Chairs must be recognised as potential leaders in their field and have a history of obtaining funding to support scholarly activity. Acadia University is seeking an outstanding scholar to establish a vibrant research programme that complements the University's commitment to multidisciplinary research on the environment—a strategic research area identified in the University's Institutional Research Plan. A copy of the IRP is available at:

<http://admin.acadiau.ca/vpaoffice/>

The successful candidate will be expected to liaise with researchers in the Faculty of Arts, the Faculty of Professional Studies and the Faculty of Pure and Applied Science.

Applications are encouraged from scholars in fields that illuminate not only the physical, social and political dimension of the environment, but also the important ways in which nature permeates our imaginative lives, our culture and our aesthetic experience.

Applications, including a curriculum vitae, a research plan and the names of three referees, and three letters of reference should be sent to Dr. Thomas G. Regan, Dean of Arts, Acadia University, Wolfville, Nova Scotia, B0P 1X0.

The deadline for applications is 1 July 2001.

Acadia University is an equal opportunity employer; qualified women are especially encouraged to apply. Applicants from outside of Canada are eligible and Canadian expatriates are invited to apply. The successful candidate is subject to review by the Canada Research Chairs Selection Committee.

University of British Columbia

The Department of Political Science anticipates making sessional appointments in the areas of Canadian Politics and International Relations for the academic year 2001-2002. Candidates will be expected to be able to offer undergraduate courses at several levels across the curriculum. Appointees will be responsible for the organization and conduct of their courses, though in large lower level classes some teaching assistance may be available.

Preference will be given to candidates with a completed Ph.D. In accordance with Canadian immigration requirements, priority will be given to Canadian citizens and permanent residents of Canada. The University of British Columbia hires on the basis of merit and is committed to employment equity. We encourage all qualified applicants to apply.

Applications close June 1, 2001

Interested individuals are invited to apply by sending a statement of interest indicating teaching competencies and a current C.V. to:

Shastri Indo-Canadian Institute

India Studies Programme - Fellowships

Fellowships are offered to Canadian scholars, librarians, students and artists for research, training, or study in India with a focus on the humanities, the social sciences (including management, education and law), and the arts. They are awarded on the basis of detailed proposals, which are reviewed by their academic and professional peers.

The primary criteria in the selection of fellows are their professional competence and their potential for improving the understanding of India in Canada. Applicants are asked to give reasonable assurance that they plan to return to Canada and contribute to bilateral understanding through research, teaching or artistic expression.

- Faculty Fellowships support research and training in India by Canadian scholars with full- or part-time appointments in a Canadian institution of higher education. Retired faculty who maintain affiliation with a Canadian institution of higher education are eligible to apply if upon return to Canada they will continue to contribute to India studies through either teaching or research.

- Faculty Research Fellowships are for scholars who have demonstrated their commitment to teaching or research in a specific field of India studies.
- Faculty Training Fellowships are for scholars: 1) who have had little or no previous involvement with India Studies and wish to undertake an intensive programme of study at an Indian institution, 2) who wish to change their disciplinary focus within India Studies, or 3) who wish to develop or enhance their knowledge of an Indian Language.

- Librarian Fellowships are awarded to Librarians who have demonstrated their commitment to teaching and research support for South Asian Studies. The fellowships can be used for: 1) an intensive programme of study at an Indian Institution, 2) enhancement of knowledge of and Indian Language, or 3) enhancement of research support for south Asian studies.
- Post-doctoral Research Fellowships are open to scholars who have completed a Ph.D. and wish to do research in India. Applicants need not have an academic position. These awards will not normally be made if it has been greater than five years since completion of a doctoral degree.
- Student Fellowships are awarded to students specializing in India entering or enrolled in a graduate degree programme.
- Student Research Fellowships enable Canadian citizens enrolled in master's or doctoral programmes at institutions outside India to conduct research in India towards their degree. The Institute offers support only for the period spent in India and only for a maximum of one year. Students must affiliate with an Indian institution.
- Fellowships for a Graduate Degree from an Indian University assist students who wish to enrol in an Indian institution of higher learning to obtain a graduate degree. Students are encouraged to seek confirmation that the Government of India approves the proposed Indian institution as a degree-granting body and that their current Canadian university supports their proposed Indian programme and will allow transfer of credit. The Institute may offer support for more than one year provided satisfactory standing and progress are maintained.
- Student Language Training Fellowships are awarded to students enrolled in graduate degree programmes outside of India who have taken training in an Indian language in Canada and wish to pursue advanced studies in that language in India. The award is normally for a period of twelve months and tenable only at recognized educational institutions that award appropriate diplomas or certificates.
- Arts fellowships are given to artists committed to the performing or visual arts who are: 1) practitioners of an Indian art form and wish to undergo training or engage in related activity in India to improve their skills or expand their repertoire, or 2) are not practitioners of such an art form but wish to learn from the practice of such a form in India to develop their own work in new, interesting and creative ways. Arts applicants will be considered for a junior or senior award as deemed appropriate by the selection committee.

- Senior Fellowships permit accomplished artists to travel to India to enrich their experience, obtain additional training, and expand their repertoire. This award is not made more than once in a three-year period to the same applicant.
- Junior Fellowships are for artists who have undertaken training in Canada, have demonstrated a commitment to the chosen art form, and can justify the need for further training in India.

Eligibility

Eligibility is restricted to citizens and permanent residents of Canada who are a minimum of 18 years of age.

Conditions of Tenure

The funding for this programme is subject to budgetary constraints. All awards are subject to approval by the Government of India. All awardees must be affiliated with an Indian institution. The Government of India does not permit research in strategic areas or on sensitive regional, political and social themes. All awardees are required to submit interim and final reports on forms provided by the Institute. Applicants who have not submitted final reports for previous Shastri awards will not be entered into the competition.

Duration

Academic Fellowships are for a minimum of three to a maximum of twelve months. Arts Fellowships are for a minimum of four months and a maximum of twelve months. The awards are made for the fiscal year (April 1 - March 31) following the annual competition and must begin before January 1.

Value

India Studies Fellowships provide a monthly living allowance of Rs 13,038, a monthly research stipend of Rs 3,300, and return airfare to India. All funding is subject to budgetary constraints.

Deadline

Deadline for RECEIPT of complete applications is Tuesday July 3, 2001. Please note that applications sent by e-mail or facsimile are not accepted.

Call for Papers

Atlantic Provinces Political Science Association
2001 Annual Conference

"Going Down the Road:
New Directions in Political Science"
October 12-14

University of New Brunswick at Saint John
Saint John, New Brunswick, Canada

This is the first call for papers for the 2001 Annual Conference of the Atlantic Provinces Political Science Association to be held October 12-14 at the University of New Brunswick - Saint John Campus. The organizers are looking for a wide range of papers, in particular - but not exclusively - those that address new or non-traditional ideas and fields of exploration in political science. Possible topics of interest may include the politics of media and new information technology; the politics of gender and sexuality; the politics of race and ethnic identity; the politics of globalization and anti-globalization; and politics in the periphery or between centre and periphery (e.g. the Atlantic provinces/seaboard; rural areas; the developing world). In all, we seek to "cross-borders" between Canadian, comparative and international politics; between traditional and non-traditional fields of political science; and between political science and other disciplines.

Paper proposals of no more than 250 words should be submitted by June 1, 2001. Proposals should be sent to:

"Transnational Democracy:
Lessons from the Nation-State?"

Nationalism and Ethnic Conflict Research Group
University of Western Ontario
October 26-27, 2001

In assessing transnational democracy -- its nature and form, its feasibility, its normative basis -- scholars have relied on inferences drawn from domestic cases of democratization. But to what extent does the experience of the nation-state provide a usable model for the transnational case? Proposals are invited for papers which examine this question, under the following headings:

- Integration and democratization: Does transnational democracy presuppose transnational civil society? What kinds of integration are necessary preconditions for democratic politics?
- State formation and regime change: Has history yielded a stable and serviceable model?
- Community formation: Does transnational democracy depend upon the development of identity and the creation of political space?
- Models of democracy: What conceptions of democracy lend themselves to transnationalization?

The conference will be conducted in English. Limited subsidies to cover travel and accommodation costs will be available. The conference is open to all social scientists, and to members of the academic community at all levels. For further information, contact:

Call for Proposals

Georgia (USA) Political Science Association
"Centralization v. De-centralization in Governmental Systems"

The Georgia Political Science Association will gather for its 2002 Conference at the Mulberry Inn in historic Savannah, Georgia, on January 31-February 2, 2002. Following a 2001 meeting that drew 150 participants from 20 states of the Union and 20 countries, the GPSA is looking forward to a strong 2002 conference. The resort area of Hilton Head Island, South Carolina, is only a few minutes from Savannah.

All scholars from all disciplines worldwide are most welcome to submit proposals, attend and participate. Deadline for proposals: September 14, 2001 For information about submitting proposals and presentations or on registration and lodging, contact Harold Cline at:

hcline@warrior.mgc.peachnet.edu

Offers to serve as panel chairs and discussants are welcome.

GRICIS*

For those of you who are interested in the political aspects of information and communication technologies, here are two international conferences to be held in Montreal in September 2001. You will find more details at: <http://www.uqam.ca/gricis>

(le français suit)

2001 Bugs. Globalism and Pluralism

As information and knowledge technologies are widespread and play a major role in all aspects of our lives, this conference is an invitation to think about the complexity of communication and its long term impact. In addition to workshops, this conference will feature five panels from the business, the public and the academic sector:

- 50 years of thinking about and investigating "ICTs and society";
- Competition and convergence: a first appraisal;
- More precise uses, more diverse users;
- The regulation of networks. The State and the markets;
- Globalization and cultural diversity. An utopia?

Panamerican Colloquium: Cultural Industries and Dialogue Between Civilizations in the Americas

This meeting recalls the signature, 300 years ago, of the first Treaty between the White People and the American Indians. It is centered on the connections between economy and culture and on the development of cultural exchanges between Peoples of the Americas. Here are the five major themes of the colloquium:

- The State and Cultural Diversity;
- Languages and Cultural Exchanges;
- Economy and Culture;

- Cultural Exchanges and Democratic Life;
- The Participation of the First Nations in the Cultural Exchanges between the American Countries.

2001 Bugs. Globalisme et pluralisme

Les nouvelles technologies de l'information et de la communication sont largement répandues et jouent un rôle fondamental dans tous les aspects de nos vies; cette conférence est une invitation à réfléchir à la complexité de la communication et à son impact à long terme. En plus des ateliers, cinq panels rythmeront les travaux du colloque auxquels prendront part les invités du milieu des affaires, du secteur public et du domaine académique:

- 50 ans de réflexion et de recherche sur "les TIC et la société";
- Concurrence et convergence: un premier bilan;
- Des usages qui se précisent, des usagers qui se différencient;
- La régulation des réseaux. L'état et le marché;
- Mondialisation et diversité culturelle, une utopie?

Colloque panaméricain: Industries culturelles et dialogue des civilisations dans les Amériques

Cette conférence nous rappelle la signature, il y a 300 ans, du premier traité entre les Blancs et les Autochtones. Elle est centrée sur les rapports entre l'économie et la culture et sur le développement des échanges culturels entre les peuples des Amériques. Voici les cinq thèmes du colloque:

- L'État et la diversité culturelle;
- Les langues et les échanges culturels;
- L'économie et la culture;
- Les échanges culturels et la vie démocratique;
- La participation des Premières Nations aux échanges culturels entre les pays américains.

* Le groupe de recherche sur les industries culturelles et l'informatisation sociale / The Research Group on Cultural Industries and Social Computerization.

Call for Papers

"Science and Politics in Canada"
(français suivant)

The Journal of Canadian Studies is soliciting essays for an issue devoted to science and politics. The purpose of this issue is to describe the contemporary place of science within diverse political, economic, and cultural contexts in Canada. Themes to be addressed could include:

- evolving patterns of support for university science, including the changing roles of government and the private sector
- the significance of science as an instrument of economic policy
- the role of science in government regulation
- science in the context of Canadian foreign affairs: in, for example, international negotiations on trade or the environment
- alternative perspectives on science, including traditional indigenous knowledge
- comparative perspectives on science and politics in Canada and elsewhere in the world
- the role of science in political and ethical controversies
- new directions in science policy, including evolving approaches to the direction and evaluation of scientific research
- the relation between science and local communities

Proposals for essays in these and any other relevant themes should be submitted by 1 June 2001. Manuscripts will be required by 1 December 2001.

Appel pour la publication d'articles

«Sciences et politiques au Canada»

La Revue d'études canadiennes est à la recherche d'articles pour son numéro consacré à la science et au contexte politique canadien. L'objectif de ce nu-méro est de décrire la place qu'occupe de nos jours la science au sein de divers contextes politiques, économiques et culturels au Canada. Les thèmes abordés peuvent compter parmi les suivants:

- L'évolution des tendances en matière de soutien des sciences au niveau universitaire, y compris les changements dans le rôle du gouvernement et du secteur privé;
- L'importance de la science comme instrument d'une politique économique;
- Le rôle de la science comme instrument d'une politique économique;
- Le rôle de la science dans la réglementation gouvernementale;
- La science dans le contexte des affaires étrangères canadiennes: dans, par exemple, les négociations internationales sur le commerce ou l'environnement;
- Autres perspectives sur la science, y compris le savoir autochtone traditionnel;
- Perspectives comparatives sur la science et le contexte politique au Canada et ailleurs dans le monde;
- Le rôle de la science dans les controverses politiques et morales;
- Les nouvelles orientations des politiques liées à la science, y compris les approches évolutives quant à l'orientation et l'évaluation de la recherche scientifique;
- Les rapports entre la science et les collectivités locales.

Les propositions de publication d'articles touchant à ces thèmes ou tout autre thème pertinent doivent être soumises d'ici le 1er juin 2001. Les articles eux-mêmes devront nous parvenir d'ici le 1er décembre 2001.

A Conference in Honour of Alan C. Cairns
Rethinking Citizenship in the Canadian Federation

University of British Columbia
October 11-13, 2001

Over the last thirty years, few scholars have shaped our understanding of the Canadian federation in the manner of Alan Cairns. In a remarkably wide array of fields - including the regional impact of Canada's electoral system, the historical development of Canadian federalism, the ongoing efforts to constitutionally reshape the federation, the minoritarian effects of the Charter of Rights, and the question of Aboriginal / Non-Aboriginal relations - Cairns's scholarship has initiated and shaped many of the most pivotal debates amongst scholars and students of Canadian politics. Even today, Cairns's scholarship operates at the cutting edge of Canadian social science. This is evidenced by the widespread attention generated by his most recent book, Citizens Plus, which is already stimulating important interdisciplinary dialogue on the future of the Canadian federation. Yet while Cairns has tackled an extraordinary number of topics, and has utilized diverse lenses of enquiry, there is a strong theme - a basis of cohesion - that operates throughout his work. This theme is Cairns's overarching and consistent focus on the question of citizenship in a federal society; it is thus appropriate that a conference honouring Professor Cairns also explore this theme.

Cairns's impact on the study of the Canadian federation reflects not only the quality and range of his scholarship; it also owes much to the manner in which he discharges his role as an academic. Through his dedicated service to his profession and to generations of his students, Cairns has long demonstrated the ideals of scholarly responsibility and duty. This sense of duty extends beyond the academy as well. For example, Cairns was a lead researcher for both the Hawthorn Inquiry of the late 1960s and the Macdonald Commission of the 1980s. In undertaking these activities - as both a scholar and citizen - Cairns has demonstrated a second common thread that has operated throughout his career: his cultivation of a scholarly citizenship.

To honour Professor Cairns's ongoing contribution to the study of Canadian politics, we will be holding a major international conference that will bring together scholars from a range of backgrounds, approaches, and disciplines. The conference will provide an opportunity to re-examine many of the topics on which Cairns has written; yet the conference aims not simply to revisit past debates, but to harness them in a future-oriented manner. Bringing together a diverse group of leading scholars studying questions that Cairns has helped to shape will enhance our future capacity to understand more fully the citizenship order that Cairns has done so much to serve and cultivate.

The conference will be organized around the following themes whose purpose is to emphasize the changing nature of citizenship in the Canadian federation in the new millennium.

Conference Themes:

1. Scholarly Citizenship

This section of the conference will consider Alan Cairns's approach to scholarship and teaching in light of contemporary debates about scholarly methodology and the contemporary role of the social scientist.

- a) Approaches and methods of a citizens' scholar

Papers presented under this category will consider Cairns's heuristic and qualitative approach in comparison to other leading social science methods, such as behaviouralism, political economy, and rational choice.

b) The scholar as citizen

Presenters in this section of the conference will address Cairns's role on leading federal research inquiries (such as the Hawthorn Inquiry and the Macdonald Commission), his role as a teacher, and his reflections on the problematic relationship between the social scientist and the state.

2. The Citizen-Shaping Institutions of the Canadian Federal State

Papers addressing this category will consider Cairns's dialectical version of neo-institutionalism and/or his insights about the impact on citizens and citizenship of one of the following Canadian institutions: federalism; the constitution; the Charter of Rights; and the electoral system.

3. Unity, Social Cohesion, and Citizenship in a Federal Society

This section of the conference will engage with Cairns's work in order to reflect on and debate the following "big picture" issues relating to the future of the Canadian federation:

- a) Quebec, federalism, and the notion of a multinational Canada
- b) Aboriginal Peoples, self-government and Canadian citizenship
- c) Multiculturalism and social cohesion

DONALD SMILEY PRIZE 2002

The Canadian Political Science Association announces the seventh competition for the Donald Smiley Prize. The award of $1000 will be made to the author or authors of the best book published in 2001, in English or French, in a field relating to the study of government and politics in Canada. The book may have single or multiple authors, but textbooks, edited books or collections of essays will not be considered.

The prize was established to honour the life and work of Donald V. Smiley (1921-1990) and to encourage the ideals of scholarship represented by this great Canadian political scientist. An internationally renowned professor of Canadian government and politics and later Professor Emeritus at York University, Professor Smiley served as President of the Canadian Political Science Association. The prize is sponsored by McGill-Queen's University Press.

Rules:

The Donald Smiley Prize will be awarded to the best book published, in English or French, in a field relating to the study of government and politics in Canada. A distinguished prize jury will be appointed by the Canadian Political Science Association, which administers the prize.

For the 2002 award, a book must have a copyright date of 2001. The deadline for submission of books is 10 December 2001. The award-winning book may be single-authored or multi-authored. No textbooks, edited books or collections of essays will be considered. The Prize winner will be announced at the 2002 Annual General Meeting of the CPSA, to be held in Toronto.

Publishers are invited to submit books for adjudication to four jury members. The names of the jury members will be available soon. Packages must be clearly marked DONALD SMILEY PRIZE ENTRY.

PRIX DONALD-SMILEY 2002

L'Association canadienne de science politique annonce le septième concours en vue de la remise du Prix Donald-Smiley. D'une valeur de 1000 $, ce prix sera décerné à l'auteur, l'auteure ou aux auteurs du meilleur livre publié en 2001 en français ou en anglais sur un sujet traitant de la politique ou du gouvernement au Canada. Les manuels scolaires, les livres publiés sous la direction d'une personne ou d'une équipe et les collections d'essais ne seront pas admissibles.

Le prix Donald-Smiley a été créé pour rendre hommage à la vie et à l'œuvre du grand politologue canadien, Donald V. Smiley (1921-1990), ainsi que pour encourager les idéaux scientifiques qu'il a personnifiés. Jouissant d'une réputation à l'échelle internationale, ce spécialiste de la politique et du gouvernement au Canada fut ensuite professeur émérite à York University. Il a aussi été président de l'Association canadienne de science politique. Le prix est subventionné par McGill-Queen's University Press.

Règlements

Le Prix Donald-Smiley sera accordé au meilleur livre publié en français ou en anglais sur un sujet traitant de la politique ou du gouvernement au Canada. Un jury sera formé par l'administratrice du prix, l'Association canadienne de science politique. Pour le prix de 2002, la date du copyright du livre doit être 2001.

La date limite pour soumettre un livre dans le cadre de ce concours est le 10 décembre 2001. Le livre primé peut avoir été rédigé par un auteur, une auteure ou par plusieurs auteurs. Les manuels scolaires, les livres publiés sous la direction d'une personne ou d'une équipe et les collections d'essais ne seront pas admissibles. Le nom du lauréat, de la lauréate ou des lauréats sera annoncé lors de l'Assemblée générale annuelle 2002 de l'Association canadienne de science politique qui aura lieu à Toronto.

PRIX C.B.-MACPHERSON 2002

L'Association canadienne de science politique annonce le cinquième concours biennal en vue de la remise du Prix C.B.-Macpherson. D'une valeur de 750 $, ce prix sera décerné à l'auteur ou l'auteure du meilleur livre publié en 2000 ou 2001 en français ou en anglais dans le domaine de la théorie politique. L'auteur ou l'auteure doit être citoyen canadien/citoyenne canadienne ou résident permanent/résidente permanente du Canada. Les manuels scolaires, les livres publiés sous la direction d'une personne ou d'une équipe et les collections d'essais ne seront pas admissibles.

Le prix a été créé grâce à une bourse des Presses de l'Université de Toronto, le principal éditeur de C.B.-Macpherson (1911-1987), pour rendre hommage à la vie et à l'œuvre de ce grand politologue canadien ainsi que pour encourager les idéaux scientifiques qu'il a personnifiés. Jouissant d'une réputation à l'échelle internationale, ce spécialiste de la théorie politique fut «University Professor» à l'University of Toronto.

Règlements:

Le Prix C.B.-Macpherson sera accordé au meilleur livre publié en français ou en anglais sur un sujet traitant de la théorie politique.
